"For Handicapped Only"

Mrs. Marilyn Hunt had requested consideration of designating parking spaces in front of the Neflsen Building as "For Handicapped Only". Peterson stated the building in question had been built prior to parking requirements, and that there would appear to be private parking spaces on the property which might be so designated by the building owner so as not to reduce the public on-street parking in that area.

Norberg stated he thinks "we are doing much too much for all of the handicapped." Norberg referenced the "thousands of dollars" the City had spent in "making all these sidewalks sloping when there may be five people in wheel chairs" in Carmel. Norberg stated he had nearly "stumbled and killed" himself because of the sloping sidewalks, "there is no sense in all that slope." Norberg stated that "the society of our times, after World War II has gone down hill" due to "anybody who is handicapped in any way."

Norberg stated that if "we simply level down our civilization to the requirements of the most handicapped, pretty soon we go down the drain as a society all together." Norberg stated the City should give "reasonable accommodations" to the handicapped, but it should not "endlessly respond to every request by any handicapped to set aside for an indefinite period of time such and so parking spaces." Norberg added he is "handicapped" by being too old, but "I haven't complained about it."

'I am shocked'

Dear Editor:

The following are direct quotes from Mayor Norberg, taken from the Carmel City Council's tour of inspection meeting on Sept. 11, 1979. They are responses to Mrs. Marilyn Hunt's inquiry as to whether or not handicapped parking spaces could be provided in front of the Neilsen Building on Lincoln Street.

"We are doing much too much for all of the handicapped," Norberg said. He then referred to the "thousands of dollars" the city had spent in "making all these sidewalks sloping when there may be five people in wheelchairs" in Carmel. Norberg stated that he had nearly "stumbled and killed" himself because of the sloping sidewalks. "There is no sense in all that slope." Norberg stated that "the society of our times, after World War II, has gone downhill" due to "anybody who is handicapped in any way."

Norberg stated that if "we simply level down our civilization to the requirements of the most handicapped, pretty soon we go down the drain as a society all together." Norberg stated the city should give "reasonable accommodations" to the handicapped, but it should not "endlessly respond to every request by any handicapped to set aside for an indefinite period of time such and so parking spaces." Norberg added that he is "handicapped" by being too old, but "I haven't complained about it."

I am shocked and embarrassed to think that this person is Carmel's mayor. He is a disgrace to the community. After all the years of handicapped people's needs being ignored, now they are graced with access to places that were previously impossible for them to get to, now that they are looked upon as equal human beings, Norberg has the gall to say that the city has spent so and so dollars, and we shouldn't bow down to every handicapped person's request.

Being in a wheelchair is a very humbling experience. I would like to see how he would feel if he was in that position, and to really have to bow down.

Does he think that the "five" people in wheelchairs that live in Carmel are the only handicapped people that will walk or ride on Carmel's sidewalks? Thousands and thousands of tourists pass through Carmel every week—handicapped people may be a minority, but, by god, they have just as much right to walk or ride anywhere that anyone else has.

As for the slope in the sidewalk, ask anyone who can walk perfectly normally and they will tell you it is easier to walk on the slope than it is to step up. If Norberg has trouble with the "excessive slope," I suggest he pay a visit to his physician to see if he is suffering from vertigo.

Such ignorant comments from the mayor, if nothing else, will hopefully serve as votes in favor of those running against him in the coming election.

Prefers traffic jam

Dear Editor:

More and more we hear about the Hatton Canyon freeway and I suspect that it may be built someday.

As big hotels, multi-hundred residential complexes and more shopping centers are authorized in Carmel Valley, the strain on Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road will become even worse than it is now.

The freeway will ease today's traffic jams, with its necessary overpasses in the lower Valley. The construction of the proposed new road at Canada de la Segunda, with its overpasses, and of the overpasses at the Farm Center will also ease our traffic problems.

I drive Highway 1 daily between Valley Way and Rio Road and it is rare that I do not spend most of my time cussing. A recent president of the United States told us that cussing may not solve a problem but it sure makes one feel better! I would rather drive Highway 1 and continue to cuss than to see any overpasses in the Valley, no matter how worse things may become in the future.

A few months ago, Councilman Brunn said: "Let the traffic stack up as far south as Big Sur." Amen, friend Howard! I add: "Let it also stack up in the other direction as far as Gigling, even if I'm in the middle of it!"

Supervisor Sam Farr recently suggested that the right-of-way of the Hatton Canyon freeway be converted to a walking path. Sometimes I disagree with Sam, but this idea of his is about as good as Howard's.

Dear Editor:

Marc Rivette's critique of Show Me a Hero was one of the most thoughtful and constructive analyses of a theater production that I have read in a very long time.

Let us hope that he will continue to review future openings of plays.

'A well-paying endeavor for realtors'

Dear Editor:

In light of the discussions in City Council lately, thought you might be interested in this unsolicited mailing.

We purchased our home in Carmel 10 years ago, not from this realtor, and have never rented it once the existing renters vacated for our occupancy. Since then, only immediate family members have used it for weekends or on an extended basis. At present, our son lives in it, is employed in Carmel, and is a registered voter there.

We resent being approached in this manner. Obviously, "renting" is a well-paying endeavor for realtors. No wonder they are springing up all over in Carmel.

If my neighbors would like to rent occasionally to people they know, that is one thing; but to have renting be a business in residential neighborhoods is quite another matter—and should not be allowed.

SOLD May I help with your property in Carmel?

As you know, property prices have soared here, and it is difficult for people not actively involved in Real Estate to keep abreast of the market. I would like to discuss with you the management of your house. If you are interested in renting, my fee is based on the gross monthly income.

Being a Real Estate broker engaged in property management since 1949, as well as being a landlord myself, I do understand the problems in managing your property.

I feel I have something of value to offer in my experienced handling of your investment, whether you are considering renting or selling.

Looking forward to hearing from you,

Mayor Norberg should resign

By AL EISNER

GUNNAR NORBERG has been a controversial mayor since his election a little over three years ago. After almost 30 frustrating years of service to the city as a gadfly, he finally won a majority of the council and began to methodically implement his cherished programs to "Save Carmel."

Many of the programs have been discarded. Several have been adopted after being heavily diluted or watered down. Others are bogged down. His arrogance and poor leadership qualities have resulted in a bitterly divided village. There are many residents and taxpayers who feel they and the village would be better off without Mr. Norberg.

His remarks on the handicapped (seen on the front page) are the last straw. The shocking lack of consideration for the handicapped and his blunt statement that "we are doing much too much for all of the handicapped" certainly call into question his fitness to serve as mayor—or in any other public capacity, for that matter.

I RUBBED MY EYES in disbelief when I read the minutes of the Sept. 11 tour of inspection shown on page one. Could any person in his right mind really mean to say: "The society of our times, after World War II has gone downhill" due to "anybody who is handicapped in any way"?

I listened carefully to the tapes of the meeting. I questioned at least two of the people who were present when the remarks were made.

Gunnar said those things, all right. And, I believe he meant them.

Gunnar has frequently been out of step with the rest of the world. It's part of his charm. After all, Carmel is frequently out of step with the rest of the world, isn't it?

There are, however, certain changes that have come about, and society has learned to accept them. Handicapped people all over the country have made their needs and their feelings known. Overlooked or cast aside for too many years, they have asserted their rights as human beings. Is a person unable to walk any less than a human being? The gains made by handicapped persons have resulted in their attaining a greater level of self-reliance—and, perhaps more importantly, self-respect.

I am appalled and shocked that the mayor of Carmel feels that if "we simply level down our civilization to the requirements of the most handicapped, pretty soon we go down the drain as a civilization." It is even more shocking that he would say such a thing in public, on the record for everyone to know.

IS IT POSSIBLE that Norberg's remarks were misinterpreted? Were they taken out of context? I don't believe so. He really means it.

When he refers to our society "going downhill after World War II" does he mean our nation is burdened with hundreds of thousands of veterans who fought for their country and returned without use of a limb, or worse? Or does he merely use that date as a reference point because that was when handicapped persons began to let us know that they, too, were human beings?

One other possible explanation is that the mayor is getting senile. Some of his detractors have pointed out some of his other "far out" statements as an indication that he is beginning to lose touch with reality. I have refused to believe this possibility until now.

Because of his intemperate statements, Gunnar Norberg is an embarrassment to the citizens of Carmel. If he does not publicly apologize to the people in this community who are handicapped or who are close to someone who is handicapped, he ought to be forced to resign.

We live in a forgiving society. While many will not be able to forget, they might summon the will to forgive, if he honestly admits he made a mistake and apologizes.

THIS WELL-HEAD LOCATED on one of the Rancho Canada golf courses presents a major obstacle to owner Nick Lombardo's planned 175-room lodge. It marks one of three wells that could be contaminated if the golf course fairway in the background is sprayed with treated wastewater, according to Walter Wong, county director of environmental health. Wong's recommendation last week against spraying near the wells stalled Lombardo's negotiations with the Carmel Sanitary District for a sewer connection that is required for his lodge project. # Rancho Canada hits snag in negotiations for sewer service; Carmel prepares lawsuit

By STEVE HELLMAN

THE COUNTY HAS DROPPED "a bomb" on the negotiations for a sewer connection agreement between the Carmel Sanitary District and Rancho Canada de la Segunda, Inc.

The county Health Department advised against spraying treated wastewater on a major portion of the Rancho Canada golf courses in Carmel Valley.

The ruling immediately stalled efforts between owner Nick Lombardo and the sanitary district to reach an agreement to dispose of treated wastewater on his golf courses in exchange for a sewer connection for Lombardo's proposed 175-room lodge.

The sewer connection was a condition required by the county Board of Supervisors in August when it approved the use permit for Lombardo's lodge project.

With the backing of the county Health Department, the supervisors stated that the lodge could not be built if Lombardo failed to secure an agreement with the sanitary district for sewage disposal service.

STANLEY WORTH, PRESIDENT of the Carmel Area Coalition, said last week that his organization is delaying its consideration of a lawsuit to halt the lodge plan until the negotiations are resolved.

But the Carmel City Council is moving ahead toward a decision to file a lawsuit. City Attorney George Brehmer said last Friday that he will make a presentation to the council at its first or second meeting in October on the feasibility of a lawsuit against the county.

Each council member told this newspaper that he strongly favored a lawsuit as a last resort to halt the project. The council members were polled last month after Lombardo received approval from the supervisors to build his lodge.

MICHAEL ZAMBORY, GENERAL manager of the sanitary district, told the board of directors at its meeting Sept. 20 that Walter Wong of the county Health Department informed Lombardo last week that he cannot spray effluent on his golf courses north of the Carmel River where three wells are located.

Wong, director of environmental health, told this newspaper that his instructions to Lombardo were that wastewater shouldn't be sprayed on the golf course area

Coastline cleanup

Dear Editor:

Tourists streaming down to Saturday night festivities on Cannery Row were puzzled to see a group of 40 to 50 people standing or sitting on the sand, listening enraptured to a tall mustached man speaking rapidly and quietly and with a subdued passion.

For nearly an hour Demetrios (Nichols)—I never heard his last name—put on a show worthy of his name.

Demetrios has a will and a way, and sufficient charisma to carry 40 or 50 persons, mostly young, mostly white, but not exclusively either, along with his rhetoric. From Seaside, Marina, Monterey, Carmel, the Valley and even—believe it or not—Pebble Beach they came. And listened. And nearly wept as Demetrios' vision took over: 2,000 to 3,000 persons will be expected to fill the local beaches on Saturday, Sept. 29, to engage in a celebration of the planet, a man-to-man, individual effort to cleanup the coastline. The people he was programming Saturday were the registrars and beach coordinators for this task.

Demetrios is the symbol and spokesman for OPII, which stands for One Planet, One Purpose, an all-volunteer, non-profit organization seeking to cleanup the entire coastline of the state within five years. This is a long coastline and will take considerable effort and dedication on the part of a lot of people. If everyone could hear Demetrios, nearly everyone, regardless of age or sex, would come to share in this vast and beautiful undertaking.

Participants are asked to register at either the Sea Scout House, at the bottom of Wharf No. 2 (parking area and Rogue restaurant) or at the Rio Road shopping center, from 8:30 to 10 a.m. Saturday. With cooperation of Ford Ord and Coast Guard personnel and equipment, the clean up will encompass recycling and sand-sifting for broken glass as well. Susan Nolan of Del Rey Oaks is the local chairman.

"Yes, it's a clean up job," said Demetrios. "But mostly, it's an effort to return one day of energy—our energy—to the earth. All of us working together as brothers and sisters can create a new, clean shoreline, a new realization of our responsibility to our mother, our planet, our earth."

It is my private hope that this display of goodwill and desire to improve our environment will at least persuade people not to drop their beer cans and soft drink bottles wherever they happen to be when they are emptied, whether on the streets of our towns or on a beach.

Local control wanted

Dear Editor:

Many legislators have authored bills this session in an attempt to curtail and bridle some of the overwhelming power that the California Coastal Commission has acquired over the years. The flagrant abuses perpetrated by some of the commissioners are unbelievable!

A type of megalomania seems to have overtaken many of the commissioners who are using their office not to "protect" the coast, but to infringe on private property rights. The state of California owns over 50 percent of the coastal property in California, and is unable to take care of that much.

Senator Paul Carpenter has authored a legislative constitutional amendment (No. 25) which calls for abolition of the coastal commission per se, and return of the control of the coast to the local governments, where it belongs.

Unfortunately, many of the coastal commissioners seem to be "managed" and "directed" by some overly zealous, overtrained environmentalists who believe in total "no growth" as the only credo for the entire coast of California.

Meantime, such places as Cannery Row in Monterey must decay in obscene delapidation with the old canneries rotting into the bay because the coastal commission refuses to give permission for tasteful, environmentally sound development in the area.

So many are the "horror" stories of abuses perpetrated by the coastal commission against the small private property owner—I am not talking about developers—that the voters of the state have carried their stories to Sacramento, and it is small wonder that the legislators are reacting in disgust and are willing to do anything to wrest some of the misused power away from the commission.

I for one hope that Senator Carpenter's amendment (SCA No. 25) makes it! Let's take back our local control and rid ourselves of just one more layer of expensive bureaucratic government!

Proposed local coastal plan revised slightly

THE CARMEL PLANNING Commission last week revised and deleted sections of the draft of the Local Coastal Program (LCP) involving traffic and beach improvements.

The commissioners were only able to get through about half of the draft at their Sept. 19 meeting and continued the session to Sept. 26 (yesterday) to finish their review of the LCP.

Shoreline access, recreation, visitor-serving facilities and housing were the three sections they reviewed. The planners were scheduled to review yesterday the LCP sections on water and marine resources; diking, dredging, filling and shoreline structures; environmentally sensitive habitat areas; agriculture; and coastal visual resources and special communities.

Proposed policies in these three sections which met with resistance from the commission last week were low-income housing (see article elsewhere in this issue), one-way streets, motorcycle parking, fines for parking tickets and parking facilities at the beach.

THE STAFF EXPLAINED that the action by the City Council Sept. 11 that "killed" a proposed plan for one-way streets in the business district had pre-empted the LCP policy recommendation that one-way streets be implemented. The commissioners, however, insisted that they act on the policy.

Commissioner Don Davidson encouraged the action, saying he believed the one-way streets proposal will be resurrected.

Commission Chairman Robert Stephenson concurred. "I agree with Dr. Davidson. It will come back."

Commissioner Arthur Mertens then moved to delete the one-way streets recommendation from the LCP. But the commission deadlocked 3-3 on the motion, leaving some of the commissioners chuckling at the outcome.

"It's up to the council to decide on it now," City Planning Director Robert Griggs noted with a smile.

Voting not to delete the one-way streets policy from the LCP were Davidson, Stephenson and John Logan.

THE COMMISSION VOTED unanimously to eliminate the policy calling for the establishment of separate motorcycle parking areas in the commercial district.

"The policy for motorcycle parking areas boggles my mind," declared Commissioner Sandy Swain.

"I take it you object to parking areas for motorcycles," asked Stephenson.

"I object to motorcycles period," replied Swain.

"It's an energy conserving item," teased Stephenson.

"Not my energy," said Swain. "I get mad at the noise of motorcycles and that uses up my energy."

Davidson noted that the city should provide parking spaces for motorcycles, "but I don't think it would be successful consolidating them." He suggested that small, individual parking areas for motorcycles be squeezed throughout the street parking spaces in the downtown area.

Mertens questioned whether there was a motorcycle parking problem.

The commissioners agreed that there didn't appear to be a problem and voted unanimously to delete the motorcycle parking policy.

THE LCP POLICY recommending that parking fines be increased to a minimum of $10 per offense instead of the current $3 was modified by the commission.

Commissioners at first pondered a "repeat ticketing" system also recommended by the LCP. The LCP proposed that a formal policy be adopted of "repeat ticketing for all-day parking offenders in the time-limited areas of the commercial district."

Stephenson noted that under the current situation, a person can park all day and receive just one $3 ticket. He noted that this was a cheap price to pay. He said a motorist once offered him $5 to park on his property all day. "I told him to save $2 and park in the street; it's only $3."

Davidson declared that "repeated ticketing is the only way to discourage people from parking all day."

Stephenson agreed. But he argued that while repeated ticketing is a fine idea because it penalizes those motorists who "hog the space" it's unfair "to the guy who happens to be 10 minutes late in returning to his car."

City Attorney George Brehmer explained that the fine would have to be the same amount as levied by other Peninsula cities. The parking fine, a posted bail amount established by the Municipal Court, may be forfeited in lieu of a court appearance. The uniformity of bail throughout the Peninsula is a primary concern in increasing the bail.

The commission voted unanimously to revise the policy to read that an increase in parking fines be considered and that it

New look for library

A NEW LANDSCAPE FOR the front of the Harrison Memorial Library on Ocean Avenue at Lincoln Street was planted earlier this month. The before (above) and after (below) sequence shows the improvement. New native plants replaced the old, overgrown shrubs. A sprinkler system was also installed. The $2,500 capital improvement project was approved by the library board of trustees last August. The forestry division of the city Public Works Department did all the work on the project. Repairs to benches, rockwork and stairways were also accomplished. (David Eaton photo)

Council may vote to pay itself Monday night

Introduction of an ordinance that will allow Carmel City Council members to receive compensation is scheduled for the next session of the council, Monday, Oct. 1.

The ordinance, which would provide a $150 monthly salary for each council member and $200 for the mayor, is scheduled to go into effect in April of 1980.

The council voted 3-2 last June on the proposal that they receive a salary. The $150 salary for each member is the maximum allowed by state law. Mayor Gunnar Norberg proposed the salary at the June 11 council session.

"There's no reason the council shouldn't get compensation," he declared at the meeting. "The law allowed up to $150 a month compensation. We would only have to appropriate $3,000 extra to cover from March 1 to June 30 next year for the newly elected mayor and council."

Councilman Howard Brunn replied, "Certainly nobody here could collect that."

"It would not come into effect until after next year's election," Norberg explained.

"That would leave you and Mike (Brown) to collect," Councilman Les Gross said to Brunn.

Council member Helen Arnold favored the idea. "I'd vote yes. I'm beginning to realize the bloody much work involved in this job."

On a motion by Norberg, seconded by Mrs. Arnold, the council voted 3-2 over the objection of Brunn and Brown to accept the maximum compensation allowed by state law.

Brunn declared: "I'll go on public record that I will never accept a salary."

The council appropriated $2,400 in the new budget to cover the salaries for April to June, 1980.

Carmel Meadows uproar over solar heating panels

'It could only happen in California'

By STEVE HELLMAN

"THIS IS INSANE. It could only happen in California," declared Joe Sullivan, chairman of the Monterey County Planning Commission.

Sullivan was irritated that the planning commission should have the job of settling a dispute between neighbors in Carmel Meadows over a set of solar heating panels.

Stoddard Johnston installed the four rows of panels on his roof to heat his swimming pool, but his neighbors complained that the plywood panels impaired their view of Point Lobos.

The matter was brought before the planning commission on Sept. 12 after it was discovered that Johnston had erected the panels illegally. The 20-foot long, 31-inch-high tilted panels were installed without design approval from the county planning department.

THE COMMISSIONERS WERE unable to decide after a lengthy debate, however, whether the panels should be removed. They were informed by Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos that a new state law prohibits the county from placing "unreasonable restrictions" on solar panels.

The California Solar Rights Act of 1978 prohibits a government body from imposing requirements that will "significantly decrease the efficiency" of the panels or "significantly increase" their cost of installation.

Sullivan fumed, "We now have a structure that isn't legal. But we can't prohibit it."

The commission deadlocked 3-3 on a motion to force Johnston to remove the panels. Voting for removal because the builder failed to seek design approval were commissioners Sullivan, Gary Varga and Marc Del Piero.

Commissioners Bill Peters, Calvin Reaves and Manuel Jimenez felt that it was more important to settle the matter without dismantling the installation.

Peters said, "We must favor solar energy. I sympathize with those who lost their view. But the question is how to work with Mr. Johnston to make the panels possible."

The commission voted unanimously on a second motion to direct Johnston and his neighbors to negotiate a compromise on the placement of the panels. The neighbors in Carmel Meadows were asked to return to the commission for an official ruling at its Oct. 10 meeting.

JOHNSTON, WHO LIVES on Ribera Road in the high-priced subdivision above Monastery Bay, said after the meeting that the dispute was "blown out of proportion."

He said his contractor, Fred Concolino of Peninsula Pool Service and Supply, checked with the Regional Coastal Commission before the construction.

"The Coastal Commission said they could care less. We checked with the planning department and they said we didn't need a building permit," Johnston said.

"As far as I know, we failed to check with the homeowners association. But I have the right according to the deed restrictions to build as high as those panels and higher," he said.

Johnston said that he doubted if the panels obstructed anyone's view. He claimed that the problem stemmed more from the belief by his neighbors that everything in the area should remain the same.

"It's not real. You have to have collectors for solar. We're being made a test case for energy versus the environment," he said.

JOHNSTON'S IMMEDIATE neighbor is Mrs. Henry Wolf. Her husband died earlier this year. Johnston said that he and Wolf were in an "adversary position for a long period of time over additions on both of our homes."

Mrs. Wolf was represented at the planning commission meeting by attorney Wendy Buck. Noting that homes in Carmel Meadows sell for as much as $650,000, Buck told the commission: "People are losing the view they paid for. Those panels are sticking up like billboards.

"Anything short of painting murals of Point Lobos on them, those panels have to either lay flat on the roof or come down."

Johnston said he had talked with his neighbors before the panels were installed. He said, "It wasn't a surprise. They knew I was putting something up there.

"I understand you can't see the panels from her (Mrs. Wolf's) living room," Johnston claimed. "They just don't want anything that might obstruct their view."

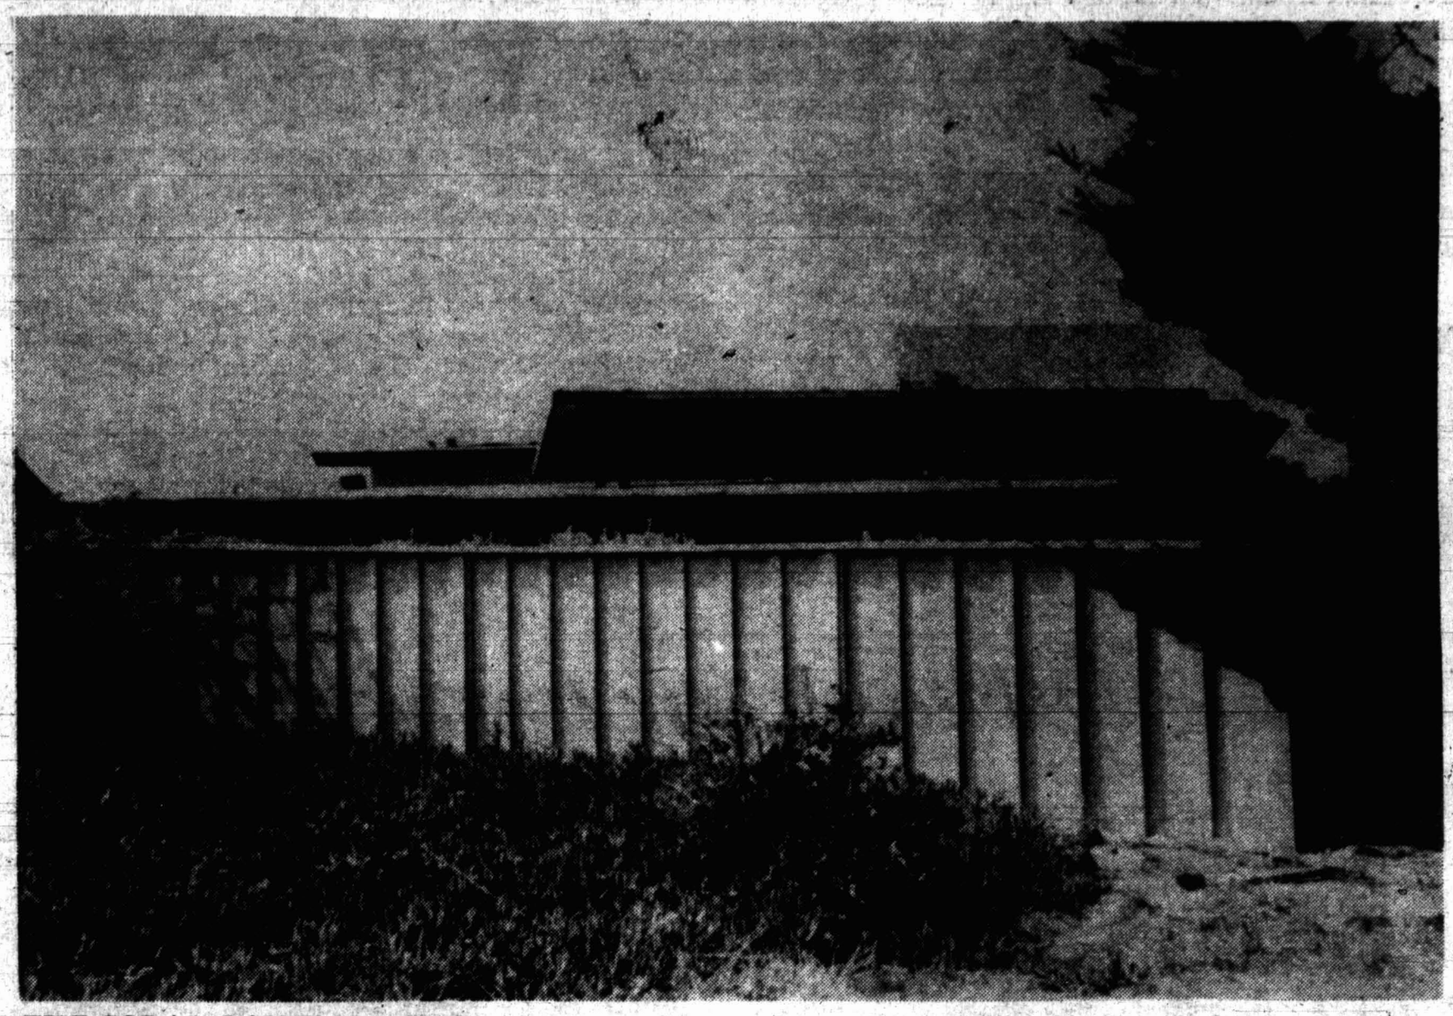
SINCE THE COUNTY put a stop-work order on the installation, Johnston said he's been unable to finish the panels. "They're looking the worst they can in the meantime, unpainted, bare wood."

Johnston said he is now trying to contact the neighbors to discuss a compromise that will allow him to complete the panels.

Concolino, the pool contractor, said: "We went out of our way to keep the panels low profile. I don't see how they block the view. The panels are a half-inch below the extra roof height."

A portion of Johnston's existing flat roof is raised due to a high living room ceiling. According to Concolino, the panels are 31 inches above the main roof. The living room roof is 32 inches above the main roof of the house.

"It's a funny thing," Concolino said of the neighbor's complaints. He suggested that a suitable compromise would be to box in the panels.



THE SOLAR PANELS on Stoddard Johnston's flat roof can be seen from a vacant lot behind his Carmel Meadows home. While his neighbors have complained that the 31-inch high panels block their view of Point Lobos, Johnston and his contractor insist the plywood and copper installation is actually lower than an existing raised portion of the roof. be emphasized that a formal policy be adopted on repeat ticketing. (The City Council has proposed to other Peninsula cities and the Municipal Court that the fine be increased from $3 to $5.)

RECOMMENDED POLICIES IN the shoreline access section of the LCP met with the commissioners' approval, although they did question the need for a new access ramp for handicapped persons leading from Ninth Street down onto the beach.

"Has it been demonstrated there is a need for handicapped people to go on the beach?" asked Mertens.

Davidson and City Planning Director Robert Griggs said "it has been demonstrated that handicapped people living in Carmel do use the beach."

Davidson said he knows of six handicapped persons in the city and they use the beach. In addition, there are handicapped tourists who also like to visit the beach.

Griggs noted: "They want to go join their friends on the sand."

San Francisco consultant Gregory Cory, who was retained by the city to prepare the LCP, added that the ramp for handicapped persons is a requirement of the Coastal Act.

OTHER POINTS IN this section which the commission approved included:

• Implementation of the Scenic Walkway Plan on Scenic Road from Santa Lucia Avenue to Eighth Street. This will result in the elimination of 30 parking spaces. Cory noted, however, that "given the relatively higher summer demand, the loss of 30 parking spaces is of marginal impact."

• Remove all references from the Carmel General Plan to conversion of Ocean Avenue to a shopping mall. Griggs said this is expected when the General Plan is revised this year.

• Coordinate with Monterey County in establishing a continuous Coastal Trail through Carmel leading from Carmel Point on the south to the Del Monte Bridle Path on the north.

THE POLICY RECOMMENDATIONS in the recreation and visitor-serving facilities section were approved, except fo the parking suggestion.

The LCP policy agreed with the city General Plan in calling for retention of the Odello acreage as a permanent greenbelt and buffer zone for the southern end of Carmel.

It also recommended that:

unless the three wells are shut down.

Lombardo said that Wong's ruling "puts a cap on the amount of water we can use." But he contended that the remaining golf course area south of the river could utilize enough wastewater to make an agreement viable.

"It would be the same amount of water that Cypress Point golf course uses," Lombardo said. "We're moving toward an agreement that is mutually acceptable. There is no problem."

Zambory told the directors of the sanitary district, however, that Wong's ruling would eliminate two-thirds of the water disposal capacity that had been planned for Rancho Canada.

'The main thing is getting rid of the sewage. They've (Rancho Canada) got to get the sewer connection or they won't proceed with the project.'

THE SANITARY DISTRICT wants to spray 335 million gallons of treated wastewater per year on the golf courses in the Del Monte Forest and Carmel Valley as part of its areawide reclamation project.

But instead of the 450,000 gallons per day it hoped to use on the Rancho Canada golf courses, the sanitary district would be able to dispose of only 150,000 gallons, according to Wong's ruling. Zambory called it "a bomb dropped on us that Wong doesn't want Lombardo to use wastewater north of the river."

Wong told this newspaper that his recommendation was based on guidelines from the state Health Department. "The area they want to spray is near three wells and a lot of drinking fountains," he said.

"With the potential human contact, they have to either revamp their present system or not spray in the area. They can have a buffer zone. We've also asked that Carmel Valley Ranch not spray closer than 1,000 feet to their wells," Wong added.

He emphasized that the main issue is not the wastewater disposal. "The main thing is getting rid of the sewage. They've got to get the sewer connection or they won't proceed with the project," he said.

THERE IS ANOTHER complication in the negotiations with Lombardo. According to the draft agreement proposed by the sanitary district, the golf course owners will not be charged more for the wastewater than their present water costs if they have wells, or the going use rate if they buy from a commercial source.

In return, the sanitary distict will require the golf course owners to construct the storage and distribution pipes on their property. The sanitary district will allow the costs of the installations to be amortized through the fees for the wastewater.

Lombardo uses his own wells for his irrigation supply, and his water costs are only for pumping and maintenance. Zambory admitted that Lombardo has pointed out that the amortization of his construction costs would be greater than the district fee for the wastewater. This could result in reduced fees that would in effect require the sanitary district to pay him to use the water.

Zambory said, "Obviously we have to sit down and toss around some more figures. It would be unacceptable for us to pay him to use the water." Lombardo would not comment on this part of the negotiations.

THE DISTRICT HAS set a self-imposed deadline of Oct. 1 to complete the agreements. The deadline was established so that the district could then apply for state and federal grant funds for the reclamation project. The agreements are necessary before the funds can be made available.

In its negotiations with the other golf courses, Zambory said that the sanitary district was waiting for a construction analysis and formula for water charges from the Del Monte Forest golf courses, which are negotiating as a bloc.

He said that they have indicated the strongest interest in reaching an agreement, mainly because their current water source is the California-American Water Company. The Del Monte Forest golf courses have had a "sweetheart" deal with Cal-Am for paying for their water, but the 50-year arrangement is due to expire next year.

Carmel Valley golf course owner rejects reclamation plan.

The sanitary district has received a flat refusal from Ed Haber, owner of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, to participate in the reclamation project.

Zambory said that Haber's golf course has narrow fairways close to homes that would present an obstacle to spraying wastewater nearby.

Haber, like Lombardo, has his own wells, although he isn't under the same pressure as Lombardo to negotiate an agreement in exchange for a sewer connection.

Padres football team opens league play Oct. 6

THE CARMEL HIGH School Padres football team was on the practice field last week preparing for the new league season after an uncertain start because of a simmering controversy over athletic fees.

Coaches were predicting as much as a 50-percent drop in player turnout after the board of education proposed last month a $75-per-player-per-sport fee. The after-school athletics program has drawn a normal number of students since the fee was reduced to $25 earlier this month.

Football coach John Whittaker said last week, "The squad is just about up to what it was last year. We've got 36 players on the varsity team, which is normal."

Whittaker said there were 11 veterans returning. The rest of the varsity team is comprised of players who performed on the sophomore/freshman team last year.

Only six team members, however, have paid the $25 fee, according to high school vice principal Joe Feldeisen. These players paid the initial $75 fee, then were refunded the difference when the fee was lowered. All players will have to pay the $25 fee by the first league game, Oct. 6.

DEADLINES HAVE BEEN set for collecting fees for each sport instead of making the fees due immediately, he said, since some players may decide not to stay on the team. Volleyball will present no problem because of a heavy turnout, he said. Feldeisen said of the football team: "They play two games before the first league game. By then they should know if they want to stick with the sport."

Feldeisen said the $75 fee "stalled" the sports program because "some kids decided to work instead of going out for sports. Then the fee was lowered, but they already had a job."

If enough students sign up for the sophomore/freshman squad, then it will be split into two teams, a junior varsity for the sophomores and a freshman squad. A junior varsity this year would allow playing time for both the sophomores and freshmen.

THE PADRES GO into the season without four seniors who led them last year to fourth place in the Mission Trails League.

Tom Larson and Mike Harney, all-league linemen, and Bruce Robinson, an all-league tight end, have graduated and are now starting players for Monterey Peninsula College. The Padres also lost star quarterback John Lucido to graduation.

Lucido led the Padres last year to wins over Hollister and Pacific Grove, the two teams that placed in the three-way tie Gonzales for first place. The Padres placed just behind the deadlocked teams.

Blow to city low-income housing solution

Attempt to leagalize second kitchens fails

A MOTION TO legalize second kitchens in the residential district as a solution to the need for low-income housing in Carmel failed to pass at the Carmel Planning Commission last week, but it may be reconsidered.

Commissioners voted 4-2 to reject the motion by Dr. Donald Davidson.

His motion came during the discussion on the housing section of the draft of the Local Coastal Program (LCP) which proposed that Carmel's existing stock of second units (second kitchens) within the residential district be legalized and regulated as a means of providing low- to moderate-income housing.

The defeat of the motion was a major setback to hopes of providing low-income individuals with shelter, according to City Planning Director Robert Griggs.

Griggs said after the meeting that the rejection of the measure also means that the entire section in the LCP on second units within the R-1 district was eliminated too. He explained that this section "was the only solution Carmel has to offer for low-income housing. It was to have been adopted as the housing element of the General Plan too."

'No matter how you define it, you're asking to make second kitchens legal.'

Griggs was optimistic a few days after the meeting, however, that the commissioners would reconsider their action and vote for the proposal at the meeting yesterday. He said some of the commissioners have talked to him about the vote and about the implications of their action. Davidson has also been lobbying among the commissioners for a reconsideration of the proposal.

DAVIDSON HAD ATTEMPTED at the Sept. 19 meeting to propose that the commission recommend to the City Council that a mechanism be developed to allow second kitchens. "I don't want to force an ordinance that legalizes second kitchens," he said.

(In the residential (R-1) district, Carmel's zoning laws permit only one food preparation facility in a house on a single lot. As many as

'The issue of second kitchens is a question of morality, not just law'—Carmel Planning Commissioner Arthur Mertens.

200-300 illegal second kitchens in guest houses or converted garages provide a second "apartment" on the site. They are illegal, but enforcement has been lax.)

The other commissioners, however, urged Davidson to present a positive recommendation.

"No matter how you define it," Commission Chairman Robert Stephenson told Davidson, "you're asking to make second kitchens legal."

City Attorney George Brehmer advised the commission that "the basic question is whether a 'second kitchen law' will benefit the community. If it doesn't, then you ought to throw it out. If you want to keep second kitchens at the present level, then recommend to the council not to enforce the present law (which prohibits them)."

COMMISSIONER ARTHUR MERTENS, who supported Davidson's motion, declared that the second kitchen issue "is a question of morality, not just law."

He said that he has become acquainted with two elderly women who wouldn't be able to afford a shelter if it wasn't for the second kitchen. He said that the two women's incomes are the same today as they were two years ago. And they're not the only ones in this same bind, Mertens declared. "There are 250 poverty level people in Carmel. By not taking positive action (on the second kitchen issue) we're turning out backs on these people. We're turning them out into the street. We have to do something."

The other commissioners, however, argued that sanctioning second kitchens would create duplexes in R-1 zones that would invite more traffic and parking problems.

Griggs warned the commissioners: "You do have to come up with something for low-income housing. It has been demonstated there is a need. At least we have to look at the ideas such as boarding houses."

COMMISSIONER SANDY SWAIN questioned whether there was a real need, stating that she hasn't seen any firm statistics on how many low-income people there are in Carmel.

Davidson replied that the LCP preliminary study showed the need for low-income housing. "When you say give me numbers, what you're saying is 'I don't want to have anything to do with it,'" declared Davidson.

"No," replied Swain, "you're reading something into it that isn't there. I just want guidelines."

Gregory Cory, who was retained by the city to develop the LCP, said that "I tried for several weeks to research this and try to get hard numbers and the information just isn't there."

"Why is it so demanding when you know we don't have the facilities?" Swain asked Cory. "Why are you bearing down so hard?"

Davidson replied that the issue in Carmel is that it can't expand and provide sites for low-income housing projects. "We're saying 'stabilize what low-income housing we do have.' We don't say make new units."

THE SECTION OF THE LCP housing proposal eliminated by the defeat of Davidson's motion called for "Carmel's existing stock of second units within the R-1 district to be preserved and regulated as a means of providing low- to moderate-income housing. Specific guidelines should include the following:

- "All such units be required to obtain a permit from the city in order to be occupied.
- "All units be regularly inspected to ensure compliance with local codes.
- "New units be allowed only where zoning regulations regarding setbacks, lot coverage, and parking may be met, and where density as established in the 1980 census for the R-1 district not be exceeded by more than 10 percent.
- "All units be allowed only where such units are ancillary to an owner-occupied dwelling or where such dwelling has been placed under the management of the non-profit housing corporation.
- "Such units be made available only to persons on certifiable low- to moderate-incomes at rents in keeping with the tenant's ability to pay.
- "Such units fall under the restrictions governing transient tenants.
- "Such permits be limited to one per resident property owner.

DAVIDSON POINTED OUT to the commission that by not allowing second kitchens, the LCP would not pass regional and state coastal commission reviews.

Griggs noted after the meeting that Monterey County and the city of Monterey allow second kitchens (referred to as "mother-in-law kitchens") through the use permit process.

The housing section of the LCP noted that "as in most communities, the rapid escalation in housing prices during the present decade has made affordable housing for all income spectrums an almost impossible goal to achieve. The Coastal Act reflects the statewide concern for such a broad scope of opportunities for housing ..."

THE LCP DID NOTE that Carmel has adopted policies in an attempt to offer secure, safe and affordable housing.

Among these policies enacted have been the encouragement of the construction of apartments in the commercial district and the creation of an R-4 zone which allows one unit per 666 square feet of land area. The R-4 zone policy also provides for density bonuses as a means of keeping rents as low as possible in the open market.

City Planning Director Robert Griggs warned the commissioners: 'You do have to come up with something for low-income housing. It has been demonstrated there is a need.'

Carmel also permits rooming houses within the R-1 district; up to two residents are allowed to rent space within an R-1 zone and to share a common kitchen.

The LCP also noted that there are five housing units in Carmel subsidized by the federal government as well as 21 privately subsidized units maintained by the Carmel Foundation.

"DESPITE THESE EXISTING measures," the draft LCP notes, "the housing background discussion identified a strong need for expanded low- and moderate-income housing opportunities. It is believed that the net effect of the following new policies would greatly aid the city in addressing these areas:

- "To more thoroughly enforce the city ordinance prohibiting rental of single-family homes for periods of less than 30 days.
- "To encourage use of rooming house permits as a means of providing increased moderate-income housing.
- "To encourage land owners to pursue available subsidized housing programs, including the new Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program.
- "To encourage a non-profit housing corporation which shall, through private and public funding sources, have within its capacity

'The basic question is whether a "second kitchen law" will benefit the community. If it doesn't, then you ought to throw it out' the ability to purchase and manage rooming houses within the city and to accept title to property and to purchase property to be used for low- and moderate-income housing."

GRIGGS SUGGESTED THAT under these proposals it may be advisable for Carmel to work with the county Housing Authority to achieve and manage these projects. He said this would save the city from administrative expenses and the necessity to create a new staff.

Commissioner John Logan noted that the creation of a non-profit housing corporation sounded like a "far out deal" which may be supported and may not.

Cory replied that it has been tried in other communities. "In some ways, the Carmel Foundation does that," he said.

Stephenson wondered who the non-profit housing corporation would be.

Griggs replied that a church or other non-profit organization could function as the corporation.

Padres football team opens league play Oct. 6

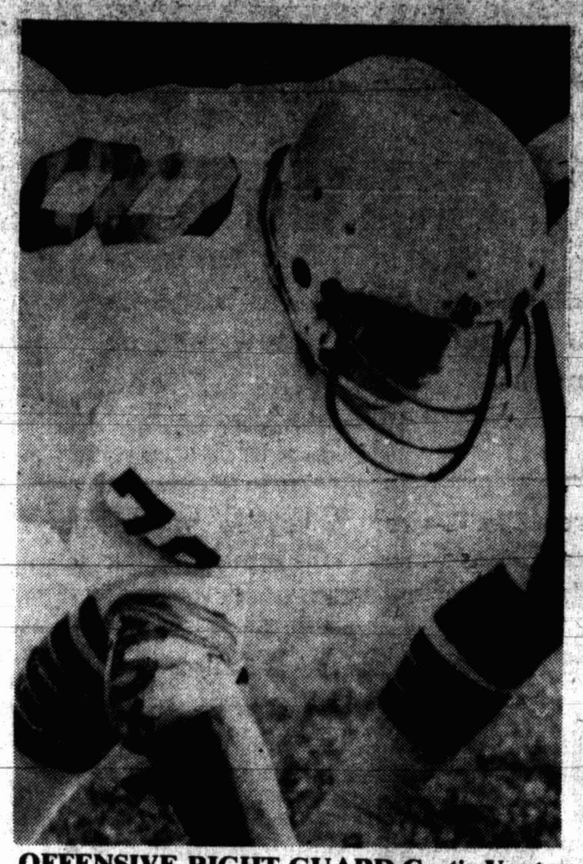
"WE'VE GOT A YOUNG team," said fullback Mike Odello. "There are fewer people to start with, and the players are smaller and not as quick."

But Odello said the team "has more unity and spirit" then last year. The 17-year-old senior will be the captain of the Padres this season.

Odello scored the first touchdown in the Padres' 20-6 win last Saturday over Morro Bay. The 6-0, 185-pound fullback went on to rush for 123 yards in the second non-league game of the season.



OFFENSIVE RIGHT GUARD Curtis Vout, a junior, also plays defense as an outside linebacker. Vout played well in both positions in the 20-6 win over Morro Bay last Saturday.

In their opening game against Monterey High, the Padres lost 34-6. Coach Frank Lynch said the inexperience of the team was a major factor in the loss against the bigger and faster Monterey High.

Halfback Joe Araujo ran for 108 yards in the win over Morro bay. The quick 5-9, 155-pound senior also scored the Padres' second touchdown on a 60-yard run.

The other halfback, Harry Lewis, blocked a punt that was recovered by teammate Jeff Grace, who ran the ball in for the Padres third touchdown.

Padres quarterback, Dean Turner, completed only one of 10 passes against Morro Bay. Lynch said four of the passes should have been caught. Turner, a 5-9, 160-pound senior, played as a defensive back last year.

The offensive line is led by right tackle Mike Matson, a 6-2, 120-pound senior. At right guard is Eric Smith, a 6-0, 195-pound senior. Smith, who also plays defensive end, explained how he felt when the trustees passed the $75 fee.

"It freaked me out," he said. "I knew I was going to play one way or the other. But I knew a lot of guys who wouldn't, especially when they don't get credit." A fee cannot be charged for classes that are offered for credit. Academic credit is not given for after-school sports, which allowed the trustees to charge a fee.

SMITH POINTED OUT that it already costs each player as much as $75 to purchase his cleats, mouthpiece, two game jerseys and insurance.

The first league game Oct. 6 against Robert Louis Stevenson School of Pebble Beach is a home contest for the Padres.

There are now eight teams in the Mission Trails League; Carmel, Pacific Grove, Robert Louis Stevenson, North County, Palma, Hollister, King City and Gonzales.

Approval to rebuild Tantamount Theatre appealed

A neighbor of Francois Martin has appealed a decision by the Monterey County Planning Commission granting a use permit to rebuild his once-popular Tantamount Theatre in Carmel Valley.

The appeal, filed on behalf of Martha Cooper Lang by Salinas attorney Nick Kraushaar, seeks to halt the rebuilding on the basis that the theater is a non-conforming use and should require a rezoning.

The county Board of Supervisors has scheduled a public hearing on the appeal for Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 2 p.m.

Meanwhile, Martin's associate, Rene Sonne, reported Monday that the copper and brass eagle sculpture that stood in front of the burned-out theater was stolen last week.

The figure, donated to Martin by Hidden Valley artist Rick Moraski, was valued at $4,000. Sonne said the thieves apparently used bolt cutters to take the six-foot-tall sculpture. "It was a clean job. We have no idea who did it."

The Tantamount Theatre was destroyed by a fire last October after Martin had operated it for 20 years as a showplace for old movies, puppet shows and occasional stage productions.

Some neighbors opposed the reconstruction, fearing that the 144-seat theater might become a busy commercial venture. But Martin was granted a use permit Aug. 29 by the planning commission after it was decided the theater could operate as a non-conforming use for not more than three nights per week.

Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos determined that less than two-thirds of the non-conforming use was destroyed by the fire, and therefore Martin was entitled to rebuild without rezoning the residential property.

Kraushaar said that he will question Ramos' decision, which he insisted was wrongly based on the county assessor's valuation of the theater after the fire.

"Our contention is that they (the county) should have counted the conforming use, the residence, also. The only thing that burned was the entire theater," Kraushaar said. He said Martin is required according to law to apply for a rezoning.

Zoning Administrator Bob Slimmon indicated at the initial hearing in July that it would be nearly impossible to rezone the property for commercial use for the theater. The property is in a residential area.

Asked if his client simply didn't want the theater rebuilt, Kraushaar said, "Mrs. Lang is not sure who is behind the rebuilding. We've never had any objection to Francois Martin, but he is too old and his health is too bad for him to participate."

The planning commission granted the use permit with the understanding that the theater would return to only its former use, but Kraushaar said the use permit technically doesn't constrain the type of operation. "They could show adult movies," he said.

Sonne said, "They (Lang) are just trying to kill us. It's costing us money every day we don't rebuild. We were getting ready to lay the foundation. We've got to get a shell up before the rains."

Sonne said that he doubted that other neighbors had joined in Lang's action.

CARMEL MISSION stood in the midst of decay when this photo was taken in 1885. Years later a group of Peninsula residents banned together to rebuild and restore the historic Mission built in the 1770s by Father Junipero Serra. The Fiesta San Carlos Borromeo, planned Sunday, Sept. 30, will honor the mission's founder with music, colorful folk dancers, native Mexican dishes and a chicken barbecue from noon through the afternoon.

ANTI-BILLBOARD FIGHT ON

Following quickly upon a meeting in San Francisco where an anti-billboard campaign was launched, organizers arrived in Carmel to carry on the movement with the help of local organizations.

The plan of the campaign is to arouse the purchasing public to take a stand against the despoliation of the landscape by patronizing companies who do not resort to outdoor advertising.

LACK OF BUILDING PERMIT CAUSES JURY TRIAL

The controversy over building permits—or the lack of them—in Carmel construction, is to be aired in court Monday, when the case of the People vs. M.J. Murphy is tried before a jury.

The contractor is charged with starting work on a residence for Mrs. Josephine Loomis on Torres Street in the Eighty Acres, without first securing the necessary permit from the city clerk.

Although there have been numerous complaints about the slipshod issuance of permits, this is the first arrest made in Carmel under the ordinance passed 10 years ago. Dwellings have sometimes reached the shingles stage before permits have been asked for.

When Murphy was arraigned Tuesday morning before Judge A. P. Fraser he pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial.

LOTS OF NEW PHONES

A gain of 159 telephones installed in Carmel since Jan. 1, 1929 has been recorded. The 15 percent increase places it among the fastest growing towns in California. There are now 1,229 services here.

SUNSET SCHOOL NEWS

The cafeteria at Sunset School is now complete. Serving hot lunches at school proved very popular with the pupils last year so it was decided to continue the practice this term. As the kitchen was in a room much too small, with inadequate utensils, it was decided to use part of the $35,000 bond issue for improvements. These improvements are now complete and lunches are again being served.

The manual training building, with Ernest Calley, teacher, is now ready for use. It is south of the former location. The shop will have two rooms in it—one for storing lumber and material, the other where the pupils will work.

SALES TAX INCREASE CONSIDERED TO FINANCE CARMEL PARKING LOTS

Opinion is divided among council members and citizens on Councilman John Chitwood's suggestion of a half-cent increase in sales tax earmarked to finance the city purchase of parking lots.

The suggestion was made at the tail end of a council meeting as an alternative to the proposed parking district's assessment of business property.

Chitwood later elaborated on his suggestion. "I haven't made up my mind whether or not I favor a parking district but if the businessmen want it, I'll go along with them" He added, "The half-cent increase in sales tax is the logical way to finance it, since parking property will require a huge amount of money and this seems the only way we'll ever get it."

Mayor Horace Lyon said that the increase is feasible and should be considered. The sales tax now brings in $40,000 a year. "With another $35,000 the city could buy a lot a year," Lyon said.

MONEY ALL OVER STREET IS PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

The new Presbyterian Church has another $10 in its building fund and thereby lies a tale.

A.A.Cuthberton of San Anselmo lost $130 in cash on his way to the Golden Bough Theater last week. It slipped out of the backpocket of his trousers. Miriam Clark Potter found it scattered beside the road. She said it was like a dream come true, in which one plucks money.

What to do? She went to the Carmel Police Department where she told the story and offered to return the money if its owner turned up and could identify it.

Mr. Cuthberton told the Golden Bough; the theater told the police; the police told the real estate agent from whom Cuthberton had rented a cottage for a few vacation weeks. They said the money could be claimed by phoning Mrs. Potter and identifying the wallet in which it was found.

That was the test for there was no wallet. When Cuthberton called he identified the bills and insisted there was no wallet. He offered a reward, Mrs. Potter said she wanted none but she would appreciate a donation to the church building fund.

So now Cuthberton has his money back, Mrs. Potter is happy and the church is $10 richer.

POST OFFICE TAKING HARD LOOK AT RURAL POST BOXES

The Carmel Post Office has a problem. Mail boxes—wrong sizes, wrong markings, hidden, fallen down, wrong height.

And to intensify the problems, two additional factors are causing the Post Office trouble: new rural carriers and the transition from rural box numbers to street numbers.

Too many post boxes on rural routes have the names of the boxholders on the sides where the carrier driving a car cannot see the markings due to obstruction of other nearby boxes. Some boxes are too high while others are too low.

Some have not yet included the street number and have only the route and box number.

"So far we haven't taken any action as far as refusing to deliver to these illegal boxes," said Mel Taylor, superintendent of mails. "But," he added, "we will have to if corrections aren't made pretty soon."

THE TENNIS COURTS as seen from Carmel Valley Road and a clubhouse are the only existing construction on the Carmel Valley Ranch, the largest planned development in the Valley. The developer must commit over $3 million toward road improvements in exchange for the additional construction of 500 condominium units, 100-unit hotel and golf course. Opponents, however, have questioned whether the Specific Plan guarantees a vested right for the 500 units. The dispute will have to be resolved by the Board of Supervisors before the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan is adopted. (Steve Hellman photo)

'Specific Plan for Carmel Valley Ranch project a county plan, not a contract'--county counsel

By STEVE HELLMAN

CONTRACTS ARE ABOUT to be drawn up that will require the developers of Carmel Valley Ranch to provide more than $3 million in contributions for road improvements.

A final decision on the subdivision agreement, subdivision map and off-site agreement between Monterey County and the developers, Landmark Lands Company of Oklahoma, was continued by county supervisors to their Oct. 2 meeting.

The agreements are based on the Specific Plan that has been approved for 500 condominium units, a 100-unit hotel and a golf course.

However, project opponents have claimed, in recent weeks, that the Specific Plan was not intended to guarantee the developer all of the 500 units.

A tentative map was approved by the supervisors earlier this year for 140 condominium units. This month, the planning commission granted design approval for the construction of the first phase of 80 units along with the $1 million on-site wastewater treatment facility.

OPPONENTS INSIST THAT the remaining 360 units should not be guaranteed to Carmel Valley Ranch in the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan revision.

The revised Master Plan, scheduled to be adopted soon, allocates 500 units to the developers of Carmel Valley Ranch. Opponents maintain that Landmark Lands Company should compete with other developments for its remaining 360 units under the Master Plan quota allocation and point system.

This issue will be resolved either by the planning commission, which is scheduled to vote on the Master Plan on Oct. 10, or the supervisors, who

DRY SALON GIVEN A WET AND HELPING HAND

When a water main broke near Fifth and Mission last week, Salon de la Vonne appeared to be up a dry creek, unable to provide shampoos for morning customers.

Salon owner and operator Lavonne Rae Andrews was given a helping hand, however, when Top Knots Beauty Salon operators, who work a few doors down, volunteered to lend their space and sinks to accommodate her customers.

Carmelites and tourists were soon greeted with the sight of caped ladies with wet heads traipsing from one end of Mission to the other.

Lavonne's customers were happy to commute from salon to salon. And, while she shampooed at Top Knots, Lavonne said her good-natured patrons at Salon de la Vonne voluntarily answered phones.

There was a hint of dissension among the troops, however. While on their short hikes, one customer was heard to murmur a request for a pair of sunglasses and another, who could have been easily accommodated, asked if she could "put a towel over my head."

SUMMER TRAINING AT SEA

Peter S. Sherman, son of Elizabeth Sherman of Carmel, is undergoing summer training at sea. He is a member of the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps (NROTC) unit at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. This summer, he has been assigned to the replenishment oiler USS Roanoke, homeported in San Francisco.

Sherman is a 1978 graduate of Robert Louis Stevenson School, Pebble Beach.

RYAN CLARK PAUL ARRIVES

Dr. and Mrs. John Paul welcomed their fourth child into the family Monday, Aug. 20, when 9-pound, 1-ounce Ryan Clark Paul was born at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

It may have been the shortest hospital stay ever recorded at the maternity ward. Mrs. Paul gave birth at 11 p.m. and was on the way home with Ryan in her arms by 4 a.m. "I can't sleep in hospitals," she said.

Dr. Paul is a psychiatrist with a practice in Carmel. Mrs. Paul is busy at home caring for Elizabeth, 5; Kristy, 4; Sean, 2, and the newborn. However, they can always count on babysitters for Mrs. Paul's parents, Ed and Mary Blackwell, live in Carmel Valley.

SANTA ROSA IS NEW HOME FOR BILL AND GLORIA CRANSTON

This is "almost cold turkey," said Gloria Cranston about the sudden plans she and her husband, Bill, have made to live in Santa Rosa.

The Monterey Peninsula has been home to the Carmel Valley residents since their marriage in 1955. After raising three children, Curtis, a Fresno State University student; Lewis, who attends MPC; and their equestrian daughter Janice, Mrs. Cranston is looking at the move as an adventure. "The hardest part is leaving our friends," she says.

Bill, who is an architect, got an offer he couldn't refuse from Todd Construction Company. He is already in Santa Rosa working as a senior architect while Gloria prepares to move in November.

Active in community affairs, Bill was a member of the Carmel Valley Master Plan Committee and the Lower Valley Advisory Committee and is past president of the Carmel Rotary Club.

BERGNER COMPLETES TRAINING

Second Lt. Kevin J. Bergner, son of Col. and Mrs. John Bergner of Carmel, recently completed a basic course as a field artillery officer at the Army Field Artillery School in Fort Sill, Okla.

CARMEL SCHOOL TRUSTEE NAMED TO STATEWIDE TASK FORCE

Richard Wilsdon, a trustee of the Carmel Unified School District since 1967, has been appointed to a statewide task force on school finance. The task force, formed by the California School Boards Association, will review ballot proposals concerning school funding and disseminate information on their possible impact. An attorney, Wilsdon has held several offices with the Carmel school board. He is a past president of the Monterey County School Boards Association, a member of the CSBA Delegate Assembly and a former member of the CSBA School Finance Committee.

CARMELITES STUDYING ABROAD

Kim Coventry and Michael Hattori of Carmel are currently studying under a University of Redlands off-campus study program for the school year. Kim will return to California from Salzburg, Austria, at the end of the current semester; Michael will remain in Waseda, Japan, for the entire academic year.

BRYSON GRADUATED, COMMISSIONED

Richard S. Bryson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Marion R. Bryson of Carmel, was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers following completion of the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps this summer. He will report for active duty.

Bryson was graduated from California Polytechnic State University in June with a major in chemistry.

NEW PRESIDENT FOR KIWANIS CLUB

Dick Hindman, owner of the General Store in Carmel Village, is the new president of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club. He and other new officers were installed at ceremonies Sept. 14 at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

WOMEN'S CLUB PLANS FASHION SHOW OCT. 3

A fall fashion show by La Boutique of The Barnyard will be the highlight of the Wednesday, Oct. 3, luncheon meeting of the Carmel Valley Women's Club. Social hour begins at 11:30 a.m. with luncheon at 12:30 at Fox Hill Restaurant at the Carmel Valley Inn.

Members are requested to bring recipes for the November tasting meeting of St. Dunstan's Church.

New Women's Club members are Jane Sassard, Mary Martin, Jean Whiteman, Irma Bolgard, Winifred Ray, Ruth Holme, Sue Zuber and Maryanna Chaples.

For additional information, phone 659-4403.

CUSHINGS WELCOME FIRST CHILD

Casey Ann Cushing, the first child of Robert and Mary Cushing of Pebble Beach, was born Sept. 13 at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

The 6-pound 11-ounce girl was 19 inches long at birth and has hazel-colored eyes, according to her father, a doctor in the emergency department at the hospital.

And, Dr. Cushing expects his newborn daughter to be very active. Her mother is a professional golfer who traveled with the women's tour before becoming a teaching professional.

MICHAEL FERRITER COMPLETES OFFICER TRAINING COURSE

Second Lt. Michael Ferriter, son of retired Col. and Mrs. Richard H. Ferriter of Carmel, recently completed an infantry officer basic course at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga.

He received instruction in leadership, intelligence, map and airphoto reading, logistics, tactical communications and weapons. This training is designed to prepare students for the duties and responsibilities of a company grade officer.

CARMELITES TAKE HONORS IN ART

Two Carmelites and a Pebble Beach resident swept three of four categories in the Quarterly Art Show sponsored by Studio Art Supply of Carmel.

Show jurors were Bill Bates, Carol Minou and Jane Pilatos.

MATHEW KEATOR, AN eighth grader and newest member of the Carmel Valley Gem & Mineral Society, polishes a gemstone. He will exhibit his art work and demonstrate the use of the machine at the Society's mineral show, Galaxy of Gems, on Sept. 29-30 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds. The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

will grant final approval for the 20-year plan.

ERNIE VOSSLER, PRESIDENT of Landmark Lands Company, was asked last week if he would continue with the project if it were limited to 140 units, especially in light of the $3 million commitment he must make to the county.

"I don't ask those kinds of questions," Vossler said. "We'll just keep complying and fulfilling 100 percent of our side of the commitment.

"Whether we get 140 units or 360 units cannot be asked. The county staff will be fair. The board will be fair. It'll all work out in the end.

"I have faith in the whole system," he said.

DEPUTY COUNTY COUNSEL Jose Ramos confirmed last week that the commitment to the Specific Plan for Carmel Valley Ranch is a matter of "equity."

He said it is a question of how much the developer can expect, and, conversely, how much the county must guarantee with the Specific Plan.

"The developer might say he's got a commitment from the county because he's relied on 500 units in the plan," Ramos said. "That may be true. The developer claims to have spent $1 million on the reliance of the Specific Plan.

"But it (the Specific Plan) is the county's plan. It is purely a legislative act passed by the Board of Supervisors. It is not a contract."

There is no legal precedent that gives the developer the right to a number of units set forth in a Specific Plan, Ramos explained. "The developer doesn't have a vested right in the Specific Plan the way he would with an approved tentative map."

The proposed Master Plan revision contains an allocation of 500 units for Carmel Valley Ranch based on the Specific Plan. But Ramos asked that if the Specific Plan doesn't guarantee 500 units, then what would be the basis for a guaranteed allocation in the Master Plan? The Master Plan can be revised with any proposed allocation system, Ramos said.

WOULD THE DEVELOPER'S contract with the county for $3 million in road improvements provide a vested interest?

"This is a question of equity," Ramos said. "The developer can claim reliance on the Specific Plan, for example, if he is laying out a lot of bucks for the development of 140 units, and the investment won't be covered unless he gets all 500 units. Then there could be an issue of reliance."

Ramos said that two months ago he would have argued steadfastly that the developer had no legal basis to rely on the Specific Plan for the units. However, in the interim, he said the developer has raised the issue of reliance, specifically in light of the financial commitments to the county.

According to Ramos, the developer reportedly said that if he couldn't rely on the Specific Plan, then the county would be unable to expect anyone to "go the route" of a Specific Plan.

"It's a crucial point in an uncertain area of the law," Ramos said. "I wouldn't want to go into court on this.

"I don't think he has a legal right to rely on the Specific Plan as though it were a contract. It boils down to what's fair," he said.

ACCORDING TO MO Orrett, supervising civil engineer of the county Public Works Department, the $2.1 million subdivision agreement and the $1 million off-site agreement were drawn up to conform with the conditions of the Specific Plan.

The $1 million off-site agreement requires the developer to provide:

- One-third of the cost of the construction of a "proper" intersection at Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads.

Because the intersection is located at the bottom of a hill, it requires an underpass rather than a

Lawsuit necessary to determine legality of sanitary district director's residency

It will require a lawsuit to determine whether Ted Weller cannot meet the residency requirements to serve on the board of directors of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Doubt was raised about Weller's legal residency after the outspoken director announced his candidacy in late August for a third term.

State law requires that candidates for the board must live within the boundaries of the district. Weller has not lived at his residence on Randall Way in Carmel since mid-July.

Don Freeman, attorney for the sanitary district, said earlier this month that the discovery by this newspaper about Weller's absent residency "might raise a serious question" if it were true.

Assistant County Registrar Ross Underwood stated, however, that as far as his office was concerned, Weller is within the law if he states that his residence is within the district. Freeman argued that the county counsel could interpret the residence qualification differently.

Freeman confirmed last week that he had checked with the county counsel and the registrar of voters and found that legal residency is based solely on "intent" to reside.

But the question remains, Freeman said, whether Weller properly represents the voters in the district if he is living in Milpitas, a suburb of San Jose.

To resolve this issue, he said, it would be necessary for a resident of the sanitary district to file a lawsuit naming the board member and the registrar of voters as negligent.

"It cannot be challenged or investigated by the registrar of voters or the sanitary district. It requires that a lawsuit be filed by a taxpayer or voter within the district," he said.

The only residency verification procedure used by the registrar of voters is to check the tax assessment roles to make certain the residence is correctly stated by the candidate.

The discovery about Weller's residency occurred when his wife, Bonnie Weller, said that he had resided in Milpitas since mid-July because of a separation in their marriage.

Weller confirmed last week that he no longer lived at the Carmel address because of domestic problems. But he said it was still his legal residence, and his voting residence.

"I'll eventually be acquiring another residence within the district once the divorce is settled," he said.

THE CHARGE OF THE LIFE BRIGADE

Half a mile, half a mile,
Half a mile onward,
All in the Valley of Carmel
Rode the six hundred.
"Forward, the Life Brigade!
Charge for the Plan," he said:
Into the Valley of Carmel
Rode the six hundred.
"Forward, the Life Brigade!"
Was there a man dismay'd?
Not tho' the residents knew
Someone had blunder'd:
Theirs but to make reply,
Theirs but to reason why,
Theirs but to do or die:
Into the Valley of Carmel
Rode the six hundred.

Hotels to the right of them,
Hotels to the left of them,
Ranches in front of them
Built up and encumbered;
Supported by suits with Holt,
Boldly they spoke and wrote,
Into the jaws of Farr,
Into the mouth of Barbara
Rode the six hundred.
Flash'd all their banners where
Protest was turn'd in air
Marshaling their forces there,
Charging the supervisors, while
All the world wonder'd:
Plung'd in the meeting room;
Right would prevail soon;
Colorado and out-of-state
Reel'd from the hours late
Shatter'd and sunder'd.
Then they rode back, but not,
Not the six hundred.

No hotels to right of them,
No hotels left of them
No ranches behind them
Built up and encumbered;
Storm'd at with bribes and tax,
While sewage plans went lax,
They that had presented facts
Had faces which were pale as wax,
Back from the zoning pacts,
All that was left of them,
Left of six hundred.

When can their glory fade?
O the wild charge they made!
All the world wonder'd.
Honor the charge they made!
Honor the Life Brigade,
Noble six hundred!

IT IS INTERESTING TO note the general atmosphere of the City Council meetings. History records that this council was elected on an "Old Carmel" slate—to offset the previous "business oriented" councils. But the mayor needs, more and more, to refer to the "Preamble," that revered statement of "primarily a residential community."

Now why do you suppose this is? Do you suppose that the currently vilified Planning Commission is all too aware that it is, and always has been, mandatory for the support of Carmel to have a vital and thriving business community?

Just suppose that one half of all of Carmel's businesses fail in the next year and we lose all that sales tax money. Suppose that one third of the motels stay empty, and we lose all that hostelry tax money.

Do you have any idea what that would have to do to our property taxes? Suppose you are paying $500 a year in property taxes now. It just might have to be increased 10 times, or $5,000. How do you think you'd feel then?

But, since Prop. 13 says they can't be raised without a vote, what would happen? Everything would be cut, cut out, or eliminated.

Including the council's salary.

"THE BUSINESS dog wagging the residential tail"?

A very colorful statement.

Do you suppose that the mayor means that the business head gets all the yummies and the resident end is only left with the pooper-scooper?

If that is true, then why do so many people want to live here?

"Arf," goes Sandy.

AT EVERY COUNCIL MEETING, there are at least three "audience packets" put in the audience seats. These are the very same information packets that are given to each council member to study before each council session. They contain all the background material, comments of explanation, recommendations, ordinances in full, presentations and minutes of previous meetings. These are for the use, information and study of the members of the audience.

After much study of these packets, and listening to what goes on up on the dais, I have come to the conclusion that Helen Arnold is one of the few members of the council who really does her "homework," and knows what the background of a given subject is, unlike another member who relies more on what "people" tell him.

Hope you know that each resident of Carmel has the right to read these packets, and even to listen to the tapes of the meetings, so they can find out for themselves just what the facts are—Ma'am.

FOUND EXCEEDINGLY interesting the comments by John Logan, the hydrologist, on the proposed Carmel Valley Ranch wastewater ponds.

The bottom liner is a 20-mil PVC liner, that's all. No cement, clay, sand or anything else. Logan's contention is that a pencil or burrowing animal could penetrate the PVC liner easily, thus allowing sewage to enter the groundwater supply.

Mr. Logan's expertise and logic seem very sensible. With the must-be-millions of gophers in Carmel Valley, the odds are pretty good that at least one of those little critters is going to hit that liner and never bat a tooth.

Twenty mils, for information purposes, is .02 inches thick, or about 1/64th of an inch.

My own gopher would just laugh. How about yours?

stop light. Orrett noted, "A stop light at the foot of a hill is too dangerous."

• Seventeen percent of the cost of widening Carmel Valley Road to four lanes from Via Petra to Robinson Canyon Road. This is a standard county requirement now that stipulates that all developers in the Valley must contribute toward the four-lane widening of Carmel Valley Road.

ACCORDING TO ANOTHER employee of the Public Works Department, who asked not to be named, the developer intended to seek reimbursement for his contribution to the off-site road improvements.

While the supervisors want all developers to carry part of the costs, the Landmark Lands Company wants other developments to contribute enough to reimburse its share, according to the source.

THE $2.1 MILLION subdivision agreement calls for:

• Construction of the 80 condominium units.

• The widening and channelization of Robinson Canyon Road where it is adjacent to the development.

• The complete relocation of Holt Road to the west end of the development.

Local coastal plan revised slightly

• Recreational uses allowed on either site should be relatively passive and not demand intensive development on the land.

• Parking availability should be increased. The commissioners voted unanimously to delete this policy. They noted that parking allowances are adequate and the congestion is only a problem on holiday weekends.

The commission also agreed with the LCP policy that called for the city to select a site within the commercial district for the construction of a new public restroom facility. They also concurred with the suggestion that the beach area rest rooms should be retained in their existing size, with portable facilities used as a supplement during peak visitor periods.

CORY WILL PREPARE a final LCP after the commission concludes its review of the draft. The commission will then review the final LCP and recommend it to the council. Following the council's approval, the LCP will be incorporated as part of the city General Plan, according to Griggs.

Each of the counties and cities within the defined coastal zone is required by the 1976 California Coastal Act to produce an LCP. It must reflect the regulations and policies of the Act.

Cory said that most of the recommendations in the LCP were developed from the comments of local residents taken during the four public hearings conducted in Carmel earlier this summer.

CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL students and faculty were shocked when vandals toppled a favorite oak tree on campus sometime early Saturday morning, Sept. 15. "Can't imagine why anybody would do it," said Frank Lynch, high school vice principal, about the chainsaw mutilation of the old oak tree that stood on a grassy knoll above the baseball diamond. The tree was estimated to be more than 100 years old. "On hot days you could fit everyone under it," said senior Wade McQueen. "It must have been one of those Saturday morning 'let's do something crazy' stunts. If they broke 300 windows you could replace them. But not this." Lynch said that the school had turned over the names of suspects to the sheriff's department for investigation. Seated on the fallen trunk are students John Baird, Robert Baird and Angus Young. # Coalition formed to protect Carmel River

By STEVE HELLMAN

A COALITION OF homeowner associations, fishing clubs and government agencies has been formed to work for the environmental protection and the enhancement of the Carmel River.

The Carmel River Coalition was created earlier this year in the wake of growing concerns about the condition of the river as a scenic waterway and as a main water supply. The aquifer below the river serves as the major source of water for the Monterey Peninsula.

Founding members include Glen Chang of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, Richard Hughett of the Carmel River Steelhead Association and Kevin La Graff, administrative assistant to Assemblyman Henry J. Mello.

AT THE SEPT. 19 meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, La Graff said, "We hope to broaden the scope of the coalition to act as a resource to alert other groups about the problems facing the river.

"In the case of further development in the Valley, we want to act as a united front," he said. He noted that the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District is in a position to act as the "mandated voice for the river."

'Whether it's too many septic tanks in the Valley, or improper grading upstream that causes siltation, the river is going to tell us what we're doing wrong'—Richard Hughett, Carmel River Steelhead Association.

"They can either do wonderful or wicked things with the river. We need to work as a lobby; we need to include this agency and others in our work," La Graff said.

New members, according to La Graff, will include the residential communities of Del Mesa Carmel and Hacienda Carmel. Also joining will be the Monterey County Flood Control office, the Soil Conservation Unit of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and the Carmel Sanitary District.

When La Graff asked the board of directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association for a $100 donation to assist the coalition, board member Robert Marble objected. Marble said the specific aims of the coalition were not clear to him.

ACCORDING TO HUGHETT, who generated the idea to form the coalition, the river acts as a "barometer" for problems in the Valley.

Hughett was not present at the meeting, but he said later: "The river is the standard for the entire eco-system in our area because it is the low point where everything drains.

'The river is the standard for the entire eco-system in our area because it is the low point where everything drains'

"Whether it's too many septic tanks in the Valley, or improper grading upstream that causes siltation, the river is going to tell us what we're doing wrong," he said.

Engineers of the Carmel Sanitary District fear that septic tank effluent may already be seeping into the aquifer.

Monitoring wells should be placed at points along the river to test for contamination, Hughett said. He hopes that the coalition will become a lobbying body for projects of this kind.

ANOTHER PROBLEM FOR the river, according to Hughett, is the grading that is done for developments. Improper grading results in heavy erosion during the winter rains. The siltation into the river in turn raises the stream bed, which increases the flood danger.

Soon after the coalition was formed six months ago, it lobbied for a grading ordinance in Monterey County, Hughett said. The efforts of Hughett and the Department of Fish and Game prompted Supervisor Sam Farr to draft a grading ordinance that was later passed into law.

"The river is far above its normal depth," Hughett said. "If the grading ordinance is enforced properly and there is seeding, then we won't have to worry about homes a mile above the river."

THE LACK OF A year-round water flow causes the stream bed to dry up in the late summer months. As a member of the Carmel River Steelhead Association, Hughett has for several summers rescued baby steelhead from the drying pools of water in the river.

He said that the young steelhead were taken to Los Padres Dam to preserve their numbers which have declined in recent years. The steelhead is a freshwater trout that migrates to the ocean, returning each year to spawn in its original headwaters.

"The river is a sand pit in the summer. Until we have a full-running river year-round, we don't have a river," Hughett said.

As a solution, the coalition advocates dredging the Los Padres Reservoir, or, as a last resort, building another dam.

"I'm the last one who would want to see a dam built," Hughett said. "We'd like to see Cal-Am (California American Water Company) dredge Los Padres to allow more storage, then let the river flow year-round.

"We want to re-establish the lower part of the river as a river," he said. Another dam, built on a small scale, could provide flood control, additional water supply and the possibility of water recreation.

HUGHETT PRAISED THE riverbank protection projects that were completed this year along six portions of the Carmel River. The projects were funded by the federal government through the Flood Control Act of 1950, and administered by the local U.S. Soil Conservation office.

'The river is a sand pit in the summer. Until we have a full-running river year-round, we don't have a river'

Several Valley homes were threatened by the winter floods of 1978 when large sections of land were washed away.

"They put in solid concentrations of rocks and willow trees to protect the banks," Hughett said of the projects. He noted that the riverbank erosion is caused partly by persons who build too close to the river.

"People are now restricted at least from building below the flood plain because they'll lose their flood insurance," he said. "But it's still a problem when homeowners pull out the trees along the riverbank."

CHANG SAID AT the Sept. 19 meeting of the property owners association: "The coalition can be a bulwark to the CVPOA. We share many of the same goals.

The Carmel River acts as a 'barometer' for problems in the Valley.

"This group has great potential. But they need the support now to get started," Chang said.

The board of directors voted 5-1 over Marble's objections to forward $50 to the Carmel River Coalition.

THE CARMEL RIVER has its share of problems. Shown here in the summer when its streambed dries into a "sand pit," the river is also assaulted by winter floods and is encroached upon from developments along its banks. The Carmel River Coalition was formed earlier this year to lobby for protective measures for the scenic waterway. One of the proposals is to either dredge Los Padres Reservoir or build a new dam to provide better flood control and a year-round flow. (Steve Hellman photo)

Father Farrell's wisdom

A prayer for self-worth

By the Rev. LARRY FARRELL

Every single minute of every day the human body generates as many new cells as the entire population of the world, about three billion. Men marvel at scientific accomplishment, yet each individual is more complex and ingenious than all scientific experiments combined.

O Lord, increase our confidence in our self-worth, then we can respect others and begin the process of loving our own family, the community and the world.

We say almost without thinking, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." But if we downgrade and even hate ourself, where does the neighbor come on the totem pole?

Finally, may we remember it is easy to be an angel when there is nothing to ruffle our wings or tarnish our halo.

More fund woes for schools --enrollment drops 8 percent

REVENUE—OR THE lack of it—continued to be a major concern to the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

The first item before the board was total CUSD enrollment as of Sept. 24, the 14th day of the school year. Despite projections used for budget and staffing purposes of 2,781 students, 14th day figures indicated a total student enrollment of 2,643, down 232 students from September 1978 (an 8 percent loss) or 131 fewer students than anticipated.

Translated into revenue, the enrollment drop means a loss of $54,873 in state Average Daily Attendance (ADA) funds. On the brighter side, however, decreased enrollment led to a savings in teachers' salaries because staff originally budgeted were not actually hired.

According to Superintendent Carl Wilsey, the most dramatic drops in enrollment occurred at the elementary school level where it was least expected. A notable exception is Carmelo School where enrollment is up 4 percent.

BILL RAND, assistant superintendent of instruction and personnel, delighted the board with the presentation of his eagerly-awaited K-5 Language Arts Curriculum Revision, a bulging compendium of "learning expectancies" for each of the primary grade levels. The revised curriculum will be distributed to teachers within the next two weeks and will be used during the year and assessed in the spring.

Each individual grade curriculum defines areas and/or skills to be covered, specifies the level of skill a student should reach and requires that teachers grade students in each of these areas.

Examples include listening, speaking, word and sentence structure, written composition, handwriting, reading, spelling, study/vocational skills and vocabulary.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board discussed the philosophy behind the Mentally Gifted Minors (MGM) program for the 1979-80 school year while awaiting the hiring of an MGM coordinator. State funding of $16,212 has been approved for the program; the funds equate to $84 for 193 MGM students, although the CUSD has 267 identified gifted minors. In practice, total revenues will be divided among all students.

More good news from the state came with word that the legislature had passed a bill which would bring funds to the district to establish a Necessary Small School. In essence, this would lead to the enlargement in size, staff and scope of the present Continuation High School and would, by bringing $52,240 in state revenue into the district, save the CUSD $15,000 this year.

The board also considered a proposal to have Linda Nations, formerly a district counselor, offer reduced-fee private counseling to students and parents, and was promised a series of curriculum reports in future months.

In addition to the K-5 Language Arts report received at Tuesday's meeting, the board will hear reports on Foreign Languages (Oct. 30), P.E. (Nov. 27), and Music (Jan. 22, 1980).

IN ACTION ITEMS, the trustees approved a lengthy list of budget adjustments which it hopes will bring the district as close to a balanced budget as it has come in recent years. Anticipated balance on the books at the end of the school year will be $122,000.

The board also discussed raising fees for use of its various facilities to the public; it presently charges less than the Pacific Grove, Monterey or Monterey Peninsula College districts for rental of gym, classrooms, shops and athletic fields. The item was tabled until the next meeting when trustees requested additional information.

Transportation for the district's dozen or so handicapped students who must travel to other schools or districts was approved by the board, as was a revision in substitute teachers' pay.

Future items to come before the trustees include Composition in grades 4-12; Undeveloped School Sites; the Cafeteria Program; and the Typing Program at its meetings of Oct. 16 and 30.

"The Bureau" My 30 years in Hoover's FBI

A Soviet mole in the New York FBI

(Editor's note: The KGB—Russia's spy agency—planted one of its own men in the heart of the FBI office in New York, but it never seemed to concern J. Edgar Hoover very much. William C. Sullivan, who rose to become Hoover's No. 3 man, believed the Soviet spy was still there when he was forced out of the FBI in 1971. He relates this and other espionage stories in the fifth of six excerpts from "The Bureau.")

By WILLIAM C. SULLIVAN with BILL BROWN

SEX ISN'T THE ONLY LEVER used by the FBI to persuade people to work for it.

Joseph Sizmonic was a code clerk working for the Polish Mission to the United Nations in New York City. He was someone we really wanted to turn into a double agent, and we had him under surveillance for months. He never did anything out of the ordinary, but one Sunday morning when his wife left the house alone, we decided to follow her.

She took a long, involved route to another part of the city and ended up at a Catholic church in Brooklyn, just in time for mass. We kept our eye on her after that and found that she attended church regularly. At this time religion was under attack in Poland and her Catholicism was just the opening we had been searching for, the chink in Sizmonic's armor.

ONE OF OUR AGENTS, a man who spoke Polish, approached Sizmonic while he was shopping (an agent would never approach a possible recruit at work, or anywhere near his colleagues) and struck up a conversation, in Polish, of course. The conversation turned quickly into an ideological debate, communism vs. capitalism, East vs. West, but it was kept on a philosophic plane. No attempt was made to win him over at that point. After that the FBI man would arrange to bump into Sizmonic once or twice a week, and every time they met he would smile and say, "Hi, Joseph," and walk on.

He did that 111 times over a period of a year. The 112th time he said "Hi, Joseph," Sizmonic put out his arm and stopped the agent from going by.

"I want to talk to you, and I want to bring my wife," he said. The agent agreed to meet both of them for lunch the next day.

At lunch our agent tried to resume the ideological debate, but the Pole stopped him after a sentence or two.

"You don't have to convince me," he said. "I've convinced myself during the past year, and my wife has always been convinced. I will work for you and, in exchange, when I am ordered back to Poland, you will let me and my family stay here and help me get a job. I want to bring up my children in the Catholic church and I can't do that in Poland."

We agreed, and he was our man for over two years. Because of him we knew everything that went on in the Polish Mission and everything that came in through their communications system.

WHEN IT CAME TO THE realities of espionage, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was a head-in-the-clouds amateur.

He didn't believe that an agent of the FBI would ever defect or sell information to the enemy. I knew that the men in the FBI were human, though, and I always worried that their personal or financial problems could leave them vulnerable to our enemies.

Hoover had always been jealous of the Canadians, and he didn't like the RCMP commissioner, a stiff-backed old boy named Harvison, who had talked back to Hoover once or twice. It was to be 10 years before Hoover changed his mind and decided to share the Russian communications with the Canadians.

THE SITUATION THAT DISTURBED me most during my 30 years in the bureau was Hoover's refusal to allow me to act on what I am convinced was Soviet intelligence operations that directly affected the FBI and the security of the United States.

I learned that the Washington field office was missing three top-secret documents that were connected with naval operations. A Soviet defector told us that an FBI agent had sold files to the Soviet Embassy. We asked the Russian for his name but he said he never knew it. But he knew that the agent had gone to the Soviet Embassy, to their naval attache, and asked for $10,000 for three documents. For the first time my worst fears seemed to come true; the Russians had bought one of our men.

The next time the Soviets had an FBI defector on their hands it was a put-up job. I instructed one of the agents in the New York office to ostensibly defect to the head of Russian intelligence, a man who worked out of their United Nations Mission. It took our man about three years, but he finally convinced the Russians that he was the genuine article: an FBI man who wanted money in return for secrets.

His one caveat was that although he'd try to give them what they wanted, he would never reveal his real name. He told them that he was a "watcher," a person who conducts surveillances. Men like that usually have a limited knowledge of highly sensitive information, so the Russians were content to let him give them what he could. He gave them a lot over the next two years, and he was very successful in convincing them that it was important.

THE SOVIET UNION spent millions of dollars on fruitless experiments trying to duplicate sophisticated military equipment that didn't work. We knew it didn't work because we had directed scientists to develop information that was wrong but would take the Soviets a lot of time and money to find that out.

Our man was paid $38,000 by the Soviets for this misinformation, and we turned it over to the Treasury Department.

One evening the Russian intelligence chief asked our man to meet him in Riverside Park in New York City—at 1 o'clock in the morning. They met and walked in silence for about 10 minutes until the Russian said, "In case anything goes wrong we have set up this escape route for you through Canada to Russia and I've got to have your right name."

For the first time in two years our man slipped and gave the Russian his real name. The next day the whole operation was dead. The Russians wouldn't have any contact with him again, although he tried and tried to reach them.

THIS IS WHAT HAPPENED: The Russians learned that our man was not a "watcher" at all, but the No. 3 man in our espionage squad in the New York office, and we have hundreds there doing that work. They knew that he not only lied to them about his position, but that he was indeed a very important counterespionage agent who would never defect and who was operating against them all the time.

There was no doubt in my mind that the Russians could learn our man's real job just by knowing his name only if there was a Russian spy in our New York office.

THE LEAKS CONTINUED to vex us. I told Hoover what had been happening and recommended that we begin gradually transferring people out of the espionage section in New York. I wanted toi replace them with all new men. It was the only way we could hope to get rid of the fellow on the Soviet payroll, a man we had been unable to discover.

Hoover said, "Some smart newspaperman is bound to find out that we are transferring people out of the New York office." I told him, "Mr. Hoover, your reputation is going to be severely tarnished if the public ever learns that you have been penetrated by the Russian KGB." Hoover said, "I know that, but no transfers."

Hoover never asked me a question about it after that. He never asked, "How is it going?" Nothing. He never again brought it up.

At the time I left the FBI in 1971, the Russians still had a man in our New York office and none of us knew who he was.

Coastal cleanup campaign planned for Saturday

Carmel residents are invited to join the coastal cleanup campaign on Saturday, Sept. 29, when debris along 100 miles of shorelines from Santa Cruz to Monterey will be collected by an expected 4,000 volunteers.

Registration will start at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in front of Sambo's restaurant, Rio Road and Highway 1.

Volunteers are asked to bring a warm shirt or sweater, gloves, a lunch, water and a burlap bag if possible.

On-beach coordinators will direct the campaign which is being sponsored by OP II, One Planet—One Purpose, of Soquel. Spokesmen for the organization say it is a non-profit educational corporation whose primary objective is the promotion of personal responsibility for planetary well-being.

The Carmel City Council failed to act on a request from the organization for a $1,000 contribution to help finance the campaign.

Demetrios Nichols, project director of OP II, One Planet—One Purpose, requested the donation at the Sept. 11 council meeting.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg replied that Carmel has cleaned its own beaches for 55 years at great cost to local taxpayers and at no cost to the thousands of people who use the beach each year.

Councilman Mike Brown told Nichols that "we can't go along with the $1,000, but we can go along with supporting the program." He suggested that Nichols meet with the city staff to determine how Carmel might be able to help the campaign other than financially.

Can you imagine where in the world they come from?

With over 300 kinds of cheese, The Cheese Shop has every cheese producing nation in the world represented, and a large selection of fine crackers from England, Scotland, France, Denmark and Armenia. Plus, you'll find a great choice of domestic and imported wines.

The Candyman of Carmel has delicious homemade, hand-dipped candies (no artificial preservatives) from The Sweet Shop and old favorites from Sweden, Italy, Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, England and France. And, of course, the popular cordials in cognac, rum, coffee or espresso!

The exquisite tapestries are from southern Poland. And surely, all of the folk art; the dolls in native costumes; the hand-carved boxes and collectors toys are from a Baltic country in our Mini Mall shop called Imports from Poland (formerly Kilims).

The attractive gift jars from Adam's Eden of Flavors are filled with exotic coffee beans from Columbia; sugarless licorice from France; delicious chocolates from Belgium and England and the bouquet garni spices or herbs from the lands you choose. Delightful gifts!

From the seven seas come Shells of Carmel's grand selection of coral and sea shells in a myriad of sizes, shapes and colors ... the English Channel, Australian reefs, India and Zanzibar all contribute to a superb assortment of unusual specimens. Come see the variety!

In Carmel Creations the handcrafted gem stone jewelry is made in Lara's studio from a world-wide collection of Opals, Malachite, Tiger Eye, Jade, Carnelian, Blue Agate, Abalone, Mother of Pearl and Lapis Lazuli. The handsome neckties are from Lara's studio in Carmel.

THE JOYS OF FATHERHOOD: Sam Ehrenberg, owner of the Atelier Gallerie in Del Dono Court, is in a state of shock after visiting the dormitories at Cal Berkeley that his son, freshman Howard Ehrenberg, will occupy ... seems the dorms really are co-ed—including the bathrooms! Poor, old-fashioned Sam thought the girls would occupy one floor, the boys another ... Sam, that's not co-educational!

The other proud papa is Sid Morris, busy young attorney-about-town ... if you make the mistake of asking him how his new baby boy is doing he'll gush: "Geez ... he's grown 2-1/2 inches and gained four pounds ... all in one month!" I reassured him that this was not at all abnormal. Incidentally, Sid confirmed that Zan Hanson, who resigned recently as an assistant attorney general for the state of California, will be joining Millard, Tourangeau, Fisher, Morris, etc. in the near future.

WORST JOKE OF THE WEEK: A priest, a hippie and a lawyer were sailing in the South Pacific when the wind died. They were only a hundred yards from shore, but the water was teeming with sharks. The priest volunteered to swim to shore, carrying a rope in his teeth to pull the craft. "After all," he said solemnly, "I am a man of God ... it's my responsibility."

The hippie, however, insisted: "Look, man ... I've had all my highs ... there's nothing more I can experience. I'll do it." While they were arguing, the lawyer dove into the water, grabbed the line in his teeth and swam for shore. Miraculously, the pack of sharks parted, forming an aisle.

After they were all safely ashore, his companions asked how he did it. "It was nothing," said the lawyer. "Just professional courtesy." (I won't tell you who gave me that one, but he was just bitten by his lawyer for a whopping fee to settle a divorce case.)

WRITER BOB CAMPBELL chuckled over the defeat of the proposed law that would have created one-way streets in the commercial district. Bob, a member of the village cultural commission, said he told council member Arnold: "What do you think this is ... a metropolis?" If you ever want to get Bob really wound up, ask him whether the city should build a parking garage. Bob says bitterly/wryly: "We're in trouble when we start thinking of the automobile as a person instead of an object." Hmmmmm.

TREKKIES REJOICE: Remember Star Trek, the sci-fi television series that attracted such a big following (or should I say cult?) ... well, Star Trek is coming back! And this time, it'll be on a giant movie screen. The film version, starring William Shatner, Leonard Nimoy and all the other original cast characters, will play at Carmel's own Golden Bough Cinema for Christmas ... a new film, Nijinsky, follows in January at the Bough, to provide a little balance culturally ... Jim Gallagher, district manager for United Artist Theatres, advises that the new Stanley Kubrick film, Shining, will play at the Bough next summer ... it stars Jack (Chinatown) Nicholson ... Kubrick, of course, did 2001: A Space Odyssey, Dr. Strangelove, and other thoughtful flicks.

ANOTHER U.F.O. SIGHTING?: While we were checking out our selections at the Thunderbird (yes, you guessed ... I'm a book junkie!) last week, a puzzled clerk brought over an object that looked ominously like a spacecraft ... he told May Waldroup that he found it in the science fiction department. Everybody relaxed,

Pianist Lyn Bronson benefit recital Sat.

Pianist Lyn Bronson will perform rarely heard works of Spanish composer Enrique Granados Saturday, Sept. 29 in a benefit recital at Sunset Center, Carmel. The performance will begin at 8 p.m.

The Carmel pianist is a member of the Hartnell College Music Department and currently president of the Monterey County Branch of the Music Teachers Association of California. A graduate of Yale University and the Yale University School of Music, Bronson completed graduate studies at CSU Fullerton where he eventually joined the piano faculty. A former student of Artur Balsam, Bruce Hungerford and Earle C. Voorhies, he has taught at Hartnell since 1975.

The recital will include performances of Valses Poeticos and Allegro de Concierto by Enrique Granados and au bord d'une source, die Lorelei and Rigoletto Concert Paraphrase by Franz Liszt. His program will also offer the Bach-Siloti Organ Prelude in G minor, the Mozart Fantasie in D minor, the Beethoven Sonata Pathetique and the Chopin Ballade in A Flat Major.

Admission, at $4 adults and $2 for students, is tax-deductible. Tickets are available at Abinante Music, Monterey; Bartlett Music, Carmel; Lily Walker Music, Pacific Grove, and the box office on the evening of the performance.

All proceeds will be donated to the Chickering Piano Fund, a community effort to restore a grand piano now in the Robert Down Elementary School in Pacific Grove.

For further information, phone 625-0797.

Artist Xnadu will autograph her book at the Thunderbird

Local artist and poet Xnadu will autograph copies of her recently published book, The Open Door, on Sunday, Sept. 30 at the Thunderbird Bookshop in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to meet the artist from 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Reproductions of Xnadu's fanciful and colorful works are each accompanied by a poem written expressly for the painting. A local production from cover to cover, The Open Door presents color plate photography by Jim Pinckney of Carmel Valley and hardcover binding by Angel Press, located in Monterey.

A long-time Carmel resident, Xnadu exhibited her works at the Open Door Gallery in the Court of the Golden Bough, Carmel, from 1973-78 and currently has shows in Los Angeles and New York.

'Candide' is one of Hidden Valley's best

DOCTOR PANGLOSS
METAPHYSICO — THEOLOGO — COSMONIGOLOGY
BEST OF ALL POSSIBLE PHILOSOPHERS
DIAL . . . OPT/OMIS (M)

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

THE ABOVE BUSINESS card was handed to members of the audience at last Sunday's performance of Hidden Valley's smashing new production of Candide by "the best of all possible philosophers," Dr. Pangloss himself.

The characterization of this shrewd reprobate by Jon Gruett was a major part of the success of the show on Sunday. For that matter, Gruett's focused versatility was displayed through a host of other characters that gives the production a strong line of continuity and cohesion. True Gruett!

With Candide this was not always possible. While the Lillian Hellman/Leonard Bernstein production was introduced in 1956, it was not until the Harold Prince production of 1973 that Candide really flew. Prince's changes included the replacement of Hellman's Voltaire adaptation with that of Hugh Wheeler, and the replacement of proscenium with full environment staging.

NOT ONLY DOES Hidden Valley have the benefit of the best of all possible Candides, but its experiences of this past summer with Camelot and Pirates of Penzance made producing Candide a natural. Of course Hidden Valley also has, in this production, the creative gifts of Fred Weiss, whose direction takes extraordinary advantage of the theater, keeps the action clear and dynamic, and constantly has the audience in a state of surprise and delight. In large measure the audience surrounds the action, but two of the five major staging areas are behind the audience and heads must turn to catch everything.

The rapidly alternating stages are a clear complement to the revised Candide. Many of the scenes are very short and flash by cameo-style, and with the orchestra intimately tied in and the woodwind quartet positioned on high, the production wears the theater like a comfortable glove.

The sets are simple but enormously versatile, and include painted backdrop panels that change with the situation. The costumes are a further complement and the attendant slapstick (including Pangloss' business card) adds just the right amount of spice.

IT IS, OF COURSE, Pangloss' seduction instruction on "the relative specific gravity of the male and female bodies" that launches the sequence of disastrous adventures that befall the four young heroes, Candide, Cunegonde, Paquette and Maximilian. As they are seduced, ripped-off, kidnapped, beaten and punished they resolutely still seek to verify Pangloss' omnipresent philosophy that "this is the best of all possible worlds."

Candide is the purest of the four souls and is the last to doubt. And while the others retain their ludicrous idealism, they at least taste some of the delights and corruptions of the cold, hard world. (It is this story, incidentally, that is imitated in Candy, Terry Southern's hilarious parody of the cheap, erotic novel.)

Key people and strong performers after Gruett (who occasionally turned Pangloss into Groucho Marx) were Gregory Mercer as Candide, Velvali de Ayxa as Cunegonde, Elaine Bush as Paquette and Mark Johnston as Maximilian. Cunegonde and Maximilian are aristocratic brother and sister, Candide is their bastard cousin and Paquette is a chambermaid.

Each singer projected a clear sense of character and comedy, and de Ayxa and Mercer added lovely singing on top. Linden Waddell was the old gypsy who figured prominently in the second act and she, like the other principals, was strong and comedic. Kevin Skiles, Val Rivera and Kim Mowrey added important character strength to their various roles.

KERRY THOMPSON WAS the conductor and was very involved in the unfolding drama. His orchestra was small but clear and pungent, though among the woodwinds there was some flat playing that occasionally stood out. Bernstein's music is delightful. The overture borrows something from Samuel Barber's School for Scandal, and many of the lyrical passages clearly anticipate West Side Story.

While some of the episodes make obvious sexual references, there is nothing to offend anyone but the stiffest prude, and such goings on as there are are not enough to keep children from attending.

This is one of the best Hidden Valley productions of 1979 and the clarity and momentum are handled, in the face of considerable complexity, with deftness and flair. If you plan to attend, do not dally. There are only nine more performances.

Sal the Barber comes to Carmel!

I would like to personally welcome Sal Greco to the Carmel area.

Sal is one of the finest Barber Stylists in the world. He is truly an International Barber, working in London with Vidal Sassoon and in Hollywood with Jay Sebring, founder of hair styling in America. Sal has worked extensively in Paris, Amsterdam, London and San Francisco.

Sal's customers range from actors like Steve McQueen and Susan St. James to business and professional men and statesmen all over the world.

He is also a tennis pro, and when not cutting hair you will find him giving help on the tennis court. Sal's philosophy about hair is: "Whether your life-style is working, playing tennis, golf, swimming, there is a hair style just for you. Everyone's hair is unique, just like fingerprints. No two people have the same type of hair, and this is why your haircut is essential to your everyday life." He is an advocate of haircuts that are "wash and wear" and "finger-combing good!"

I am proud and happy that Sal has come to the Monterey Peninsula, and I am sure you will be too.

A busy October at Sunset

By RICHARD TYLER
Director, Community and Cultural Affairs

PIANIST LYN BRONSON will be presented in a piano recital Saturday, Sept. 29 at Sunset Theater to benefit the Pacific Grove Unified School District's Chickering Piano Fund. The Chickering Piano Fund represents a community effort to raise funds to restore a fine, old six-foot eight-inch grand piano now in the Robert Down School in Pacific Grove.

Bronson, of Carmel, is a member of the Hartnell College Music Department and president of the Monterey County branch of the Music Teachers Association of California. A graduate of Yale University and the Yale University School of Music, he later finished his graduate studies at Fullerton, where he stayed on to become a member of the piano faculty. He has studied with pianists Artur Balsam and Bruce Hungerford in New York City and Earle C. Voorhies in Los Angeles and has been a member of the Hartnell Music Department since 1975.

The recital program will highlight two compositions by Enrique Granados, Valse Poeticos and Allegro de Concierto which although popular with Spanish audiences are rarely heard in the United States. Three compositions by Franz Liszt, au bord d'une source, die Lorelei and the Rigoletto Concert Paraphrase are also comparative novelties. The program will also contain the Bach-Siloti Organ Prelude in G Minor, the Mozart Fantasie in D Minor, the Beethoven Sonata Pathetique, and the Chopin Ballade in A Flat Major.

Tickets are fully tax deductible and are available at Abinante Music in Monterey, Bartlett Music in Carmel, and Lily Walker in Pacific Grove as well as at the box office on the evening of the performance. Admission for adults is $4 and there are student tickets available for $2.

ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHT-SIX plays were received for the third annual Festival of Firsts Playwriting Competition with several coming from as far as Ontario, Canada; Paris, France; Derbyshire, England; and Jerusalem, Israel; all students whose homes are in the United States. Some 78 scripts were received from California with New York next in line with 31. Interestingly, Colorado sent in the third highest number.

In all, 30 states are represented in this annual competition. Three local judges are committed to the arduous task of reading all these plays before six will be chosen to send on to the final judges. The winning play will have a production in Carmel next year.

THE CHINESE CIRCUS of Taiwan will be making its second appearance in the Carmel Festival of Dance Series to be presented this season at Sunset Theater. While they are still fresh for American audiences, some of the dances and acrobatic routines go back almost 2,000 years in Chinese history.

The petite and pretty dancers may remind one of the maidens in Madame Butterfly. The comely, willowy juggler's assistant with a large red flower affixed to her left ear suggests a Chinese Carmen. With graceful dancing, expert juggling, superb balancing, tumbling, beautiful costumes, and that rarest of creatures, a lady magician, the show is excellent fare for adults and children.

The revue moves quickly and since the members of the cast speak little or no English, there is little chatter to distract attention from what is occurring on stage. One of the showstoppers is the Ribbon Dance in which the dancers move gracefully while swirling large, multi-colored ribbons through the air. The Chop Stick Dance is charming; but fear not, it doesn't conjure up visions of chop suey!

The Aborigine Dance brings to mind a tribe of American Indians with the female dancers in feathered headdresses and the male dancers in feathered headbands. A spectacular dance is the Golden Eva which features two acrobatic female dancers covered with gold body paint and wearing colorful dragon masks ... perhaps an early Chinese form of adagio. It is an enthralling show, clearly offbeat with an enchantment all its own. You've seen dancers and acrobats before but these are just different enough to be worth another look.

Tickets are available at $6.75 and $5.75 at the director's office in Sunset Center. All seats are reserved and so advance reservations are advised for better seating. For more information, call 624-3996.

The Chinese Circus will be at Sunset Center on Saturday, Oct. 27 at 8 p.m.

WE WELCOME BACK Don Porter, who two years ago successfully taught a mime class at the center. He will again offer a class studying the basic forms and outlines of American street mime. Included will be slow motion fighting, work on facial expressions, and basic character work related to the mime field.

Porter studied with Claude Kipnes Mime Troupe in New York City. He has taught at Monterey Peninsula College for the last four years in the theater arts field and is resident director of the Grand Theater Company, a mime improvisation company that has appeared on the Merv Griffin Show, at the Comedy Store in Los Angeles and the Ice House in Pasadena. Starting Monday, Oct. 15, the class will meet each Monday and Wednesday, 7-9 p.m. in the Babcock Room. The fee for six lessons is $18. Please call the director's office, 624-3996, to register.

An open lecture entitled, Self-Hypnosis—All you want to know but could never find a hypnotist to ask, will be held at Sunset Center Thursday evening, Sept. 27, at 8 p.m. in the Bingham Room. The public is invited to attend. A nominal charge of $2 is being asked at the door. This lecture will preface a course in self-hypnosis by Carol Terry, who has been successfully training people most recently at the Sunset Center to understand their unique suggestibility powers. So come prepared to ask questions.

DURING THE MONTH of October, the Marjorie Evans Gallery will present paintings and calligraphs from school children in the People's Republic of China. The two schools which are providing the paintings are the Hai Men Children's Home in Shanghai and Nanking Teachers' College and Middle School in Nanking.

"Art and children may constitute a whole new form of world diplomacy. Who said, 'One picture is worth a thousand words?' We did!" These are the thoughts logged by San Mateo artist-teacher Char Pribuss in her journal sketchbook describing a memorable adventure in China just before the advent of "normalization" between the People's Republic and the United States. It is from this visit that the exhibition was made available.

Pribuss and her husband, Rudy, a semi-retired engineer who sketches and paints with his wife, are addicted to travel and endowed with an irresistable enthusiasm for people. They have expressed these two passions through art. "Like the Pied Piper's flute, a small sketch or painting done in any remote corner of the globe attracts the shyest people and becomes a universal language," says Char Pribuss.

Beyond this, the Pribusses have instigated an exchange show between the students of the Royal Academy of Art in London and the College of San Mateo and are in the process of negotiating a show with local youngsters and the children of Armenia. So, when their latest journey was in the planning stage, what more logical than the idea which struck them simultaneously, "Why not the children of China?"

How they managed by dint of their own forthright person-to-person paintbrush diplomacy and with little or no official encouragement is a charming story. When they walked back across the Chinese border, they had with them 37 children's drawings, paintings and calligraphies rolled in scrolls and tied with bright ribbons. They also had the names and addresses of the child artists.

This show will be on exhibit in the Marjorie Evans Gallery opening Tuesday, Oct. 2, through Oct. 30. The gallery is open each weekday from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and on nights of performances. Admission is free.

THE ARTISTS and instructors of Sunset Center Studio 15 will present their annual exhibition at the Sunset Theater Lobby Gallery through the month of October with the opening scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 2.

The multi-media exhibition will include the following artists and media categories: Joseph Tanous, oils; Harold Mason, watercolors and etchings; Nancy Taylor, oils and watercolors; Shirley Polovy, oils; Jack Laycox, oil, watercolors and sculpture; Virginia Conroy Dedini, watercolors and etchings; Robert Street, sculpture; Jayne Amason, oils and sculpture; and Denis Hunt, watercolors. The annual exhibition is a graphic demonstration of the creative work and instruction provided by Sunset Center Studio 15. The gallery is open during performances or by special arrangement with the director's office.

THERE WILL BE A Theater Festival in Dublin, Ireland, through the middle of October. Speaking of conventions, the Festival for Mind-Body-Spirit will meet from Sept. 26-30 at the New York Coliseum. According to the event's promotional literature, the aim of the convention is "to offer the general public in a joyful and entertaining way a wide range of new lifestyles, alternate systems, sciences, and philosophies." Christopher Lasch probably wouldn't approve, but this "Me Decade" country fair promises a shopping spree for the '70s seeker of bean sprouts and being. Highlights will include a dome of ancient British mystical truths, talking plants and a health food restaurant.

Today's best Chardonnay buys are from California's vineyards

By Robert Lawrence Balzer

THERE IS STRIVING for perfection with the golden, white wine grape of Burgundy, and often, it seems, an almost perfect Chardonnay is here. But by whose standards? Ah, there's the rub.

A few years ago, when the eminent Mme. Lalou Bize-Leroy of Meursault was in California, she tasted a full complement of the California Chardonnays then in prominent favor. She had brought with her, from undeniably the highest echelons of Burgundian wine strata, that experienced palate which had endowed her with not only the post of quality control director for the Domaine de la Romanee-Conti, but the prestigious firm of negociant-eleveur, Leroy, half-owners also of the great Domaine.

Her tasting reactions would be most significant. How did she like them?

SHE PREFERRED THE Hanzell 1974, but found the '74 Chateu Montelena "le plus pres de notre" (the most like their own). Her ideal in memory index? Possibly the Meursault-Perrieres 1969 or 1966.

Most of the California wines, to her taste, were too much fruit or too much wood. The subtle balance of both is needed for that softly poetic concept of "the perfect Chardonnay."

At the Los Angeles County Fair, as a wine judge, we recently had an opportunity to taste some 50 entries in this present popular white wine category. And as reported here, there were two gold medals awarded, one to Chateau St. Jean 1977 Alexander Valley Chardonnay Robert Young Vineyard, and to the newly emerging Milano Winery for the 1978 Mendocino Chardonnay. The two wines were both outstanding, but widely different in character.

If memory serves, the Chateau St. Jean Chardonnay was round in the mouth, of a straw-golden color, from French oak, with a clean, dry, long and full-flavored finish.

The Milano Mendocino wine was more pronounced of varietal grape character, less complex, but clean, dry and crisp.

Our panel of four judges agreed both were worthy of gold medal designation. At the time of the tasting, of course, we had no notion of where the wines had come from.

IN THE LAST WEEK, we've had an opportunity to taste two more good California Chardonnay wines, from two different growing regions, a Beringer 1977 Estate Bottled Napa Valley Chardonnay and the Zaca Mesa 1977 Chardonnay from Chapel and Toyon Vineyards of the Zaca Mesa Ranch in Santa Barbara County ($5.75).

Tasted together, the regional differences, and possibly the younger age of the Zaca Mesa vines, could account for a rather green, almost acrid taste of the latter wine, with a slight haze obscuring its brilliance, which time might settle out.

Time, or the lack of it, robbed the wine of its fair run toward perfection, in the vineyard and in the winery. Not enough time in oak, to our taste, and release before initial awkwardness could be softened.

THE BERINGER WINE, by Myron Nightingale, has a brilliant yellow-gold appearance, and the oak element of bouquet is the first impression from a bouquet which leads on deeper into the grape's own varietal complexity.

In the cool southern region of the Napa Valley, each block from two separate vineyards was planted only as the grapes reached optimum ripeness. This, in Prof. Harold Olmo's distinguished monograph on Chardonnay, is the crucial beginning for "the perfect Chardonnay."

He says: "There is very little in the way of distinct flavor, in either the grape or the new wine until the fruit is almost overripe. Even experienced tasters cannot pinpoint any mark of varietal distinctness in the usual wines of high acidity. However, it is exactly this delicacy and cleanness of taste that makes the variety an excellent base for champagne and a delight to the connoisseur. In matured wines of the highest quality there is often an exquisite aroma of ripe apples or of ripe peaches, but who can document it?

Ripe fruit, almost overripe, seems to be the undeniable lead to greatness. It set apart the Beringer-Nightingale wine above. It was also the greatness of the Chateau Montelena Chardonnay of our memory and the favor of Mme. Bize-Leroy.

WE HAD AN OPPORTUNITY to taste the Robert Mondavi 1973 Napa Valley Chardonnay not too long ago, and immediately wished we could have shared it with Mme. Bize-Leroy. It was as close to the "perfect round" as any Meursault-Perrieres of our memory. It is wrong, if one is seeking after perfection, to taste any of our fine California Chardonnays until after their fourth birthday.

The bigger and better wines will only reach their greatness after a minimum of five years. This is the reason for cool, dark cellars, for aging.

That California vintners have surpassed many of the producers of French White Burgundies with Chardonnay (Pinot Chardonnay, as we've frequently stated here, is an erroneous name for the same grape or wine) is owed to our advances in technology and equipment. Prof. Olmo underscores this factor: "(California) winemakers are aware that the Chardonnay can be easily tainted, requiring extra care in the cleanliness of all equipment in its handling and transfer."

IN THE IMPECCABLE cleanliness of our wineries, the newness of their equipment and equally impeccable vineyard disciplines, we have possibly outdistanced many French growers.

Perfection is not easily attained. It is costly in not only labor and equipment but personal investment. Such wines are inevitably expensive, but from the point of view of value, the best buys today in Chardonnay are from California vineyards. Properly cellared they can equate or surpass the most noble titles of France.

'Candide' at Hidden Valley

Candide, Leonard Bernstein's rollicking musical based on Voltaire's classic satire of optimism, will be staged Thursday, Friday and Sunday, Sept. 27-28 and 30 at Hidden Valley Theater, Ford and Carmel Valley roads, Carmel Valley.

The Hidden Valley Musical Theater Ensemble production will be staged cabaret-style at 8 p.m. each evening; an additional Sunday matinee will begin at 2:30 p.m. The audience will be seated around small tables where they may enjoy refreshments during the performance.

A picaresque novel in reverse, Candide was originally and remains in this lively musical version, a satire on foolish optimists. In picaresque novels a hero fearlessly rushes from one hazardous adventure to another rescuing lovely damsels by audacity and skill. Candide is no such dashing fellow.

He is shanghaied and dragged unwillingly from one horrific adventure to the next, and he wins no battles. Taught by the learned Dr. Pangloss that this is the "best of all possible worlds," Candide is continually surprised by the frightful injustices and miseries he encounters. These range from the mass rape of his sweetheart, Cunegonde, by a regiment of Bulgarian soldiers, to their enslavement by pirates on the high seas.

As he hops from one disaster to another, Candide remains an indefatigable optimist, or just plain fool, in the face of evidence. However, after weathering his harrowing adventures, Candide of the 18th century comes to a 20th century conclusion: "Men have always been liars, cheats, idiots, thieves, hyprocrites, fools, they probably always will be and there is nothing a decent civilized man can do but laugh at it, if he doesn't want to break his heart and lose his mind."

Directed by Fred Weiss, the local production stars Greg Mercer as the guileless hero; Velvali de Ayxa as Cunegonde, his equally innocent sweetheart; and Jon Gruett, who fills five roles—Voltaire, Pangloss, a lascivious governor, a sadistic host at a dinner party and the sage who holds the formula for happiness. They will be joined by Linden Waddell, Elaine Bush, Mark Johnston and 17 additional cast members. Ken Lodge designed the scenery and lighting.

Musical accompaniment will be provided by the Hidden Valley Orchestra conducted by Kerry Thompson.

Additional performances will be staged Oct. 4-7.

Admission is $6 adults and $4 juniors (children under 14); Friday and Saturday shows are $8 and $6, respectively. Tickets are available at Countrywide Crafts, The Barnyard and How to Do Anything Bookstore, Carmel; Lily Walker Records, Pacific Grove; The Record Cove, Monterey; and Hidden Valley.

For reservations or further information, phone 659-3115.

Friends of Sea Otters meet Fri.

Sea otters will be the focus of a meeting and boat trip planned this week by the local Friends of the Sea Otter.

The annual meeting of the organization dedicated to the protection of sea otters is planned Friday, Sept. 28 at Santa Catalina School, Mark Thomas Drive, Monterey, at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend; there is no charge.

From the Edge of Extinction, a film photographed by the California Department of Fish and Game, will be screened. Researchers who will discuss their findings on the sea otter include Suzanne V. Benech, an environmental consultant, and otter observer Judson Vandevere.

An otter outing on Monterey Bay is scheduled Saturday, Sept. 29 at 3:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to meet at Chris' Fishing Fleet on Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey, for the hour-long tour. Tickets are $3.50 adults and $2.50 for children. Reservations are required; phone 625-3290 between 11 a.m.-3 p.m. or 625-3398 by Thursday, Sept. 27.

Mariachis, Spanish dancers, arts and food

Carmel Mission Fiesta begins at noon Sunday

All the color and gaiety of a Mexican folk festival is promised at the annual Fiesta de San Carlos Borromeo Sunday, Sept. 30 in Carmel Mission Basilica, Rio Road, Carmel. The fun begins at noon in the mission courtyard; there is no charge for admission.

One of Carmel's happiest and most popular events, the annual fiesta honors the patron saint of the basilica, Father Junipero Serra and dates back to the days when the frail Franciscan padre founded the mission.

As in past years, the event will present lively mariachi bands, Spanish dancers, games and prizes. Entertainers this year include El Ballet Folklorico de Fremont, a Mexican folk dancing ensemble which performs dances from the regions of Mexico including Chiapas, Jalisco, Michoacan, Veracruz and Zacatecas.

In addition, local artists and craftsmen will display their wares in the covered corridor of the mission. The fiesta will also offer a chicken barbecue for $4 and a variety of Mexican foods, produce and other tempting snacks.

The diminutive Father Serra (he was just 5'3" tall) was born in 1713 in Petra, Majorca where he was baptized Miguel Joseph before he took the name Junipero with his final vows.

Sent to Mexico City in 1749, a part of a missionary contingency, he worked and lived in remote Indian villages and with the city's poor for years before he was told to take over the Jesuit missions of Baja California.

From there, Father Serra organized an expedition to San Diego and Monterey to establish presidios and missions. On May 30, 1770, the Franciscan monk began to plan for the San Carlos Borromeo Mission in Carmel and by 1771 construction had begun.

After a life filled by achievements and scored by austerity and hardship, the frail priest died Aug. 29, 1784 and was buried at the foot of the present altar. The Carmel Mission Fiesta commemorates his deeds.

The fiesta has been celebrated since the founding of the mission, even during the years when the basilica was abandoned. In his book, Across the Plains, Robert Louis Stevenson describes the strange sight of the Indians assembled amid the ruins.

"They returned to hear Mass in the little sacristy which was the only covered portion of the church. An aged Indian, stone blind...conducts the singing, other Indians compose the choir...and pronounce the Latin so correctly that I could follow the meaning as they sang... God was served with perhaps more touching circumstances than in any other temple under heaven."

Free parking is available adjacent to the Mission on the ball field off Rio Road.

For further information, phone 624-1271 or 624-9231.

MARIACHI MUSIC, colorful folk dancers and native Mexican foods are all part of the excitement promised at the Fiesta San Carlos de Borromeo to be celebrated Sunday, Sept. 30 at Carmel Mission Basilica from noon through the afternoon. One of Carmel's liveliest and happiest traditions, the annual fiesta honors the mission's founder, Father Junipero Serra, who began construction of the adobe church in the early 1770s.

Sunday from Monterey to Pacific Grove

Annual Run for the Hospice will attract over 2000 joggers

The annual Run for the Hospice, a 6.2 mile foot race to benefit the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, will attract 2,000 joggers Sunday, Sept. 30 over a course that will stretch from Monterey to Pacific Grove.

Sponsored by Don Lucas Ford of Monterey, the race last year attracted more than 1,500 runners who dashed from Custom House Plaza along Cannery Row to Lovers Point before making the return trek. Joggers this year will depart from the Plaza at 10 a.m. and run the same course.

The race will offer five divisions for runners: boys and girls, 13 and under; boys and girls, 14-18; open men and women, 19-29; sub-master group, 30-39; masters, 40-49; and seniors, 50 and over.

Winners of the open men's and women's categories will be awarded a round-trip flight to the Honolulu Marathon. Commemorative mugs will be awarded to the first five finishers in each division and all runners will be given a T-shirt and ribbon. Additional prizes include running shoes, shorts and warm-up suits to be awarded to pre-registered runners at a drawing following the race.

Race day registration is $6 and will be taken between 8 and 9:45 a.m. Entry forms may be picked up at most sporting goods stores on the Monterey Peninsula; Dick Bruhn's, Carmel; and the Hospice in Carmel Valley. Entrants are requested to show a 1979 AAU card at check-in and include AAU numbers on their entry forms.

The six-bedroom Hospice in Carmel Valley gives support to cancer patients from the time of diagnosis through hospitalization, surgery, treatment and adjustment to recovery or death. The project is funded by grants from CETA, the American Cancer Society, Macomber Legacy and memorial and private donations.

OUR COPS ARE TOPS: Sgt. GETTING BY: Francis Herrick, the retired professor who almost got elected to the City Council a couple of years ago, told us he is doing just fine, thank you. At first he claimed that the inflation-induced rise in Social Security payments was really keeping him afloat ... after some prodding, however, he admitted that he had an annuity that provided additional income. "I fooled them," Herrick said with relish. "They didn't think I'd live this long." Doc, I hope you live forever ... you give Carmel a little more class.

REMEMBER THE FLAVOR of real homemade ice cream? The very best ice cream I've tasted in years is not sold at an ice cream store ... it's at Jensen's Restaurant in Carmel Rancho ... rich, creamy and full of flavor. I've had real coffee ice cream (tasted like rich, hot coffee was poured into the ice cream when it was forming) and banana ice cream too ... in the case of the latter, it was like eating liquid bananas. The best part of the deal is that the ice cream is FREE with your $3.95 complete dinner (they also throw in a glass of wine) ... it's gotta be the best buy in food in town.

RUN, DON'T WALK to your telephone and reserve tickets for the Hidden Valley Musical Theatre production of Candide. It's the best theater production on any local stage in several years. Director Fred Weiss manages to wring uniformly good performances out of the whole cast. The show (music by Leonard Bernstein) crackles with wit, sophistication and barbed humor. I was fortunate enough to see the original Broadway production a couple of years ago ... this production may not be as lavish, but it was just as much fun. Don't miss it!

Six travel-adventure films planned

Explorama season tickets now available

Season tickets for Explorama, a showcase series of feature-length travel-adventure films personally narrated by the filmmakers, are now available at local ticket outlets throughout the Monterey Peninsula.

Six films scheduled for the 1979-80 season will be screened on two consecutive evenings each month at Sunset Theater, Carmel at 8:15 p.m.

The first in the series is Egypt: Cradle of Civilization narrated by George Lourbis, Oct. 11-12. The absorbing film examines the history of the Egyptians, their philosophy, culture and achievements. The camera focuses on Abu-Simbel and the wonders of ancient Egypt, the Suez Canal, the Tutankhamen story and bustling Cairo today.

Florence and Italy's Hill Towns, scheduled Nov. 15-16, will be narrated by Robin Williams. The film acquaints the viewer with the Renaissance home of Michelangelo, Leonardo DaVinci and legendary Italian families—the Medicis and the Borgias. The film then travels to picturesque villages and towns that surround Florence, including Sienna, Bologna and Padua.

From the shores of the Mediterranean to the Adriatic, the Alps form a wall between Southern Europe and the northern countries. On Jan. 17-18 The Alps of Europe narrated by Eric Pavel will explore the majestic countrysides of Italy, France, Switzerland and Austria.

Traditions and technology of one small yet powerful Oriental country will be explored in Japan, narrated by Thayer Soule, Feb. 7-8. A portrait of a truly unique culture emerges as the classic theatres, modern factories, age-old festivals, and space age technology are shown to coexist in a culture dating back thousands of years.

Filmmaker Robert Davis will narrate his film Ireland, a fascinating journey through the land of shillelaghs and shamrocks March 13-14. A country of contradiction and contrasts, from sophisticated Dublin to the remote rural interior, Ireland is the evergreen home of the proudest, wittiest and most literary and loving people on earth, according to Davis.

The azure beauty and alluring charm of sunny tropical islands will be revealed in the film, The French Carribbean, April 17-18. Producer and narrator Arthur Wilson will present the French-Dutch history of St. Martin, St. Bath, Martinique and Guadeloupe.

England, Scotland and Wales will be narrated by Kenneth Richter May 15-16. From remote Land's End to bustling London, Richter's camera explores mysterious Stonehenge, provincial villages and bustling cities.

Season tickets good for all seven screenings are $26.95. Single ticket admission is $4.50, general, or $3.50 for student rush (tickets sold one hour before each performance only).

Tickets may be purchased at Macy's, Del Monte Center, Monterey; the Emporium, Northridge Shopping Center, Salinas or by writing for an application to Explorama, 701 Sutter St., 4th Floor, San Francisco, Calif. 94109.

Sierra Club plans bike ride, hike

A bicycle ride through the apple-laden orchards of Watsonville and a 12-mile hike near Los Padres Dam are planned this week by the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club. Everyone is welcome to join the excursions.

The leisurely bike ride Saturday, September 29 will include a stop at Gizdich's farm to sample fresh-picked apples. Meet at the Cinema 70 parking lot, Del Monte Center, Monterey at 9 a.m. to form carpools for the 40-minute drive or at the trail head, Riverside Drive and Lakeview Blvd., north of Watsonville at 9:45 a.m.

For more information, phone Chet and Bev Gadaire at 375-8995.

A strenuous hike with a 1,700-foot elevation gain is planned Sunday, Sept. 30 from Los Padres Dam to the Danish Creek Camp and Blue Rock Ridge Trail. Meet at 7:30 a.m. behind Brinton's in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel to form carpools or the Bank of America parking lot in Carmel Valley Village at 8 a.m. Bring lunch, water, sturdy hiking boots, and a $2 carpool fee.

For additional information, phone Merrill Jones, 624-3052 evenings.

Book Fair Saturday

Books, books and more books, leatherbound or paperback, will be sold at the annual All Saints' Book Fair Saturday, Sept. 29 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in th Parish Hall, Lincoln and Ninth, Carmel.

A salad luncheon prepared by mothers from the All Saints' Day School, will be served at noon. A snack bar will be open throughout the day and babysitting in the church nursery provided at no charge.

Members of the All Saints' Library Guild, sponsors of the book fair, have been busy sorting books for weeks. Mrs. Donald Taughter and Mrs. Richard Barrett are chairwomen of the event.

For more information, phone 624-3883.

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

Black rolls 4-3. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

Black, who has already borne off five men, is far ahead in the race, but he is not yet out of the woods. This roll was not his best—it forced him to leave a blot. He has only one 4 to play, bearing off a man from the 4-point. That leaves only one problem: How best to play the 3.

As usual, we have choices. The obvious play is to bear a man off the 3-point. The alternative is to move a man from the 5-point to the 2-point, which would leave us with an even number of men on our back point.

It is simply a matter of calculating which roll leaves White the fewest opportunities to hit the blot now and which will expose Black to greater danger on future rolls. The answer to the first question is that White will have 11 chances to hit no matter which way Black plays now. But what of the next turn?

If Black bears off two men, he leaves himself with five combinations at his next turn which would leave a double blot—6-3, 5-3 and 3-3. In addition, there are four combinations that would leave one blot: 6-5 and 4-1.

But if Black chooses the first option, there is no combination at his next turn which would force him to leave two blots. As against that, however, there are 23 combinations that would force him to leave one blot: 6-5, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2, 5-4, 5-3, 5-2, 4-3, 4-1, 3-2, 6-6, 5-5 and 3-3.

That is just too much. It must be better to bear off two men, leaving Black with an even number of men still to bear off. In addition, White has a weakness on his 6-point. Even if White hits one or two men, Black is still in the game and will have chances in a race.

Naturally, this argument assumes that White will be able to maintain his position for one roll.

Artists Molnar and Schmidt open dual show at Zantman

A dual show of Indian and Western art by award-winning artists George Molnar and Brad Schmidt will open with an artists' reception Saturday, Sept. 29 at the Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to attend from 6-9 p.m.; refreshments will be served.

A keen interest in the lives and folklore of the American Indian and particularly the Navajos of Arizona has guided George Molnar's choice of artistic subjects and styles.

Born in Pennsylvania in 1953, he moved to California as a boy, where he made many Indian friends.

After only a few art courses to learn basic techniques, Molnar observed the styles of portrait artists and frequently visited friends at Arizona reservations where he made sketches and photos of the most interesting faces.

For the past two years Molnar has been invited to exhibit in the annual George Phippen Memorial Art Show in Prescott, Ariz., and was awarded the Silver Medal in 1978. This year, in the fifth annual show, he won the coveted Gold Medal with his oil Navajo Mother and Child.

Brad Schmidt showed an interest in painting at the age of 4 and continued to pursue his artistic inclinations. Before graduating from high school at the age of 16, Schmidt had the opportunity to visit the studio of a well-known artist. Watching an image emerge on canvas excited Schmidt and he knew he wanted to do only one thing—paint.

Born in Southern California in 1956, he was barely 20 years old when he entered a painting in the Monterey County Fair, where he won First Place and Best of Show. Since then he has continued to reap awards from the County Fair and the annual George Phippen Memorial Art Show.

Scenes of cowboys roping cattle against the backdrop of the vast American desert or of tired horses resting in the heat of the midday sun are among his favorite subjects.

The paintings of Schmidt and Molnar may be viewed daily from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. through Oct. 12.

For further information, phone 624-8314.

Mixed media exhibit opens at Sunset

A mixed-media exhibit of works by artists and instructors of Sunset Center Studio 15 will open Tuesday, Oct. 2 in the Sunset Theater lobby, Carmel.

The annual display provides a glimpse at the creative work and instruction provided by the artists of Sunset's art center.

The nine artists included in the group show are: Joseph Tanous, oils: Harold Mason, watercolors and etchings; Nancy Taylor, oils and watercolors; Shirley Polovy, oils; Jack Laycox, oils, watercolors and sculptures; Virginia Conroy Dedini, watercolors and etchings; Robert Street, sculpture; Jayne Amason, oils and sculptures; and Denis Hunt, watercolors.

The exhibit may be viewed in the lobby during performances or by appointment with the director's office.

For more information phone 624-3996.

Exhibit of Chinese children's art opens Tuesday at Sunset Center

An exhibit of paintings and calligraphies by school children of the People's Republic of China will open Tuesday, Oct. 2 at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center, Carmel.

The works were collected by San Mateo artist-teacher Char Pribuss and her husband Rudy, who sketches with his wife, while on a visit to the Hai Men Children's Home in Shanghai and Nanking Teachers' College and Middle School in Nanking.

"Art and children may constitute a whole new form of world diplomacy," Mrs. Pribuss logged in her journal while visiting China before the advent of normalization between the People's Republic and the United States. "A small sketch or painting done in any remote corner of the globe attracts the shyest people and becomes a universal language," she says.

The exhibit may be viewed through Oct. 30 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday and on nights of performances.

For further information, phone 624-3996.

Third Annual Antique Show at Fairgrounds this weekend

The era of fine furnishings and quality craftsmanship will be re-created when dealers from throughout the United States bring their collections to the third annual Monterey History and Art Association Antique Show and Sale, Friday through Sunday, Sept. 28-30.

More than 50 dealers will display antiques in the 19,000-square-foot Serra Room of the Monterey Conference Center, 1 Portola Plaza, Monterey. Hours are noon-9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and noon-5 p.m. Sunday.

Fashions from California's Golden Era—1849 to 1900, a collection of antique costumes, is a special attraction this year. The costumes include a ball gown worn to the opening of the Palace Hotel of San Francisco and a cape fashioned after a style worn by Sarah Bernhardt. Following the show, the collection will be exhibited at the Cooper-Molera Adobe, a National Trust for Historic Preservation property in Monterey.

Dealers from as far away as Maryland, Texas and Washington will each create a display room within the vast auditorium with pieces of American primitives, French, Italian and English furniture plus delicate porcelains, antique prints, rugs, clocks, jewelry and more. A stroll through the Serra Room, the Art Association promises, will resemble a visit to a lovely private home.

Visitors may dine in the garden bar and restaurant catered by Del Monte Hyatt House during show hours.

Proceeds from the antique show and sale will be directed to the Maritime Museum Building Fund to finance an addition for the Allen Knight Maritime Museum. The museum now houses an expanding collection of shipping artifacts that reflect the heyday of Monterey's past whaling and fishing industry.

Admission to the show is $2.50 general or $2 with a coupon found in local publications.

For further information, phone 625-2445.

20th anniversary of York School Sat.

The 20th anniversary of York School will be commemorated Saturday, Sept. 29 with a day-long Founder's Day celebration on the private day-school campus, located at the west end of Laguna Seca Ranch, off Highway 68, Monterey. Everyone is welcome to attend the free event which begins at 11 a.m. with Mass, followed by lunch, a campus tour, awards presentation and a wine and cheese party.

Founded in 1959, the school's first classes were conducted at the John Tennant home in Pacific Grove where the Canterbury Woods Episcopal residence now stands. Though the school began with a seventh grade as an Episcopal boys' boarding school, each year a new grade was added until 1965 when the seventh grade was dropped and its first 11-member senior class was graduated. York moved to its present location in 1965 when property was donated by the McIntosh and Bishop families.

Reservations are required for the celebration; phone 372-7338.

Thorngate one-man show opens Friday in Monterey

A one-man show of paintings by local artist and physician Philip Thorngate will open with a preview reception Friday, Sept. 28 at the Monterey Conference Center, 1 Portola Plaza, Monterey. Everyone is welcome to meet the artist from 6-8 p.m.

Born in China to missionary parents, Thorngate was influenced during his early years by the art and culture of the East. Later his appreciation of Oriental art was balanced by European artists of the impressionist and post-impressionist schools. After attending Alfred University School of Ceramic Design in Alfred, N.Y., he continued his art studies at Milton College in Wisconsin where he earned a bachelor's degree in arts.

Thorngate's artistic career took a temporary back seat to medicine when he began his medical training at the Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. After completing his education, he moved to the Monterey Peninsula.

A member of Gallery Six from its inception, where he had two one-man shows, Thorngate has exhibited his works at Sunset Theater, Carmel, the Fountain Court Gallery of the Community Hospital, Carmel Valley Manor and Forest Hill Manor. His paintings earned a first place and an honorable mention at a recent exhibit of the American Physicians Art Association in San Francisco.

The exhibit is co-sponsored by the Monterey Conference Center Art Commission and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Sarah Pells Fitton is wed

Sarah Pells Fitton and John Everett Feuerstein exchanged wedding vows Sept. 22 beneath the oaks of Jacks Peak Regional Park in Monterey in a ceremony officiated by family friend the Rev. Sydney C. Swann of Lancaster, Va.

The bride is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Cyrus F. Fitton of Carmel. A 1974 graduate of Carmel High School, she recently earned a science degree in biology from the University of Colorado.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett B. Feuerstein of Loveland, Colo. He was graduated from Loveland High School in 1974 before earning a degree in engineering from the University of Colorado in 1979.

The maid of honor was Sara Doman of Ann Arbor, Mich.

New Mexico resident Elmer Salazar served as best man. Ushers were the bride's brother, Andrew Fitton, Michael Cate and Matt Hudson, all of Carmel; Lloyd Daniel of Monterey, and Allen Stack of Honolulu.

The bride wore an ivory lace dress made by the groom's mother. The blouson top was complemented with long sleeves tied at the wrist with delicate bows. During the ceremony, John's sister, Deborah, played oboe and Sarah's brother, Andrew, read poetry.

Following the ceremony, 90 guests gathered for a reception on the back lawn of the home of Capt. and Mrs. Fitton. Special guests were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Willis J. Pells of Rhinebeck, N.Y., and the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Feuerstein of Greeley, Colo.

The newlyweds will make their first home in San Diego where John is employed with Caltrans.

MRS. JOHN FEUERSTEIN, the former Sarah Pells Fitton

EL BALLET FOLKLORICO de Fremont will perform a lively Mexican Hat Dance at the annual Fiesta de San Carlos Borromeo Sunday, Sept. 30 in Carmel Mission Basilica, Rio Road, Carmel. Mariachi bands, games, arts and crafts exhibits and a chicken barbecue are promised at the celebration which honors Father Junipero Serra.

Obituaries

Edith Jones Tower, a 27-year resident of Carmel, died Wednesday, Sept. 19, at the Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital after a long illness. Mrs. Tower, founder of the Monterey Bay Area Wellesley Club, was 90 years old.

She was born in Lynn, Mass., and was graduated from Wellesley College in 1916. She was the president and founder of the New Jersey Wellesley Club through the mid-1920s.

She was the widow of Walter Sheldon Tower, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute from 1940-52. The couple came to Carmel after Tower retired in 1952.

She was active in the local Visiting Nurse Association and a member of the board of directors from 1955-60.

Most recently, Mrs. Tower was a resident of Del Mesa Carmel.

Survivors include a son, Donald B. Tower of Bethesda, Md.; stepson, James W. Tower of Mystic, Conn.; one granddaughter and seven stepgrandchildren.

A memorial service will be given pending the arrival of family members from the East.

The family asks that memorial contributions be made to the Monterey Bay Area Wellesley Club, in care of treasurer Margaret Barnes, Hacienda Carmel, 93921.

PEBBLE BEACH HOME

on Stevenson Drive now available. As you approach the house you sense the panorama of the unique union of the sea, the shore, the woods and the mountains. This unobstructed view of Carmel Bay and beyond may be one of the finest in Pebble Beach, renowned for its shoreline and golf courses within guarded gates. The Pebble Beach Lodge and the Polo Field are a short walk away from this residence set among majestic oaks and towering pines.

If entertaining is part of your life, you will be particularly pleased with the spacious living room (21x35, oak floor), dining room and cheerful kitchen with the best appliances.

The master bedroom suite with fireplace features separate walk-in closets, a grand bath and dressing area, two private patio areas; an adjacent private room contains an exercise pool, sauna and spa enclosed by high walls and a rollamatic roof to let the outdoors in at your command.

The view can also be enjoyed from the library, sun room and two additional bedrooms. Four full baths, two half-baths, 4,500 square feet, three-car garage, work shops, 2/3 acre. Offered at $795,000.

To arrange an appointment to see this tastefully decorated, modern home, call (408) 624-2437 or write Box 1463, Pebble Beach, California 93953.

3 BEDRMS. WITH SPECTACULAR OCEAN VIEW

Situated high on a hill with an unparalleled view of Point Lobos and the Fish Ranch, this house is one of the finest examples of contemporary architecture in the area. Built entirely of brick, the house features a spacious living room with a 21' high ceiling, dining room, family room, breakfast room, den, 3 bedrooms, 2½ baths. Finished with meticulous care, the house abounds with teak veneeer built-in cabinets, and the matching room doors are set in solid teak frames. Copper piping is used throughout the house, and there is a recirculating loop and pump for instant hot water at all faucets. Offered at $375,000.

CARMEL WITH MOUNTAIN VIEW— 3 BRS, 2 BATHS

Views of the mountains and the Mission Trails Park are yours from this roomy 3-bedroom, 2-bath home, and they can be seen from four different rooms: the living room, dining room, kitchen and one bedroom. For the entertaining or the relaxing minded, this home offers a huge patio and a large deck. It is located near Carmel Mission and is VERY, VERY reasonably priced at only $175,000.

LOT, SOUTH OF OCEAN NR. TOWN. $85,000

This is a 40' x 100' lot on Torres between 9th and 10th. It slopes down from the street with sewer connection in the rear. There are several fine oaks and pines. We know of nothing for less south of Ocean, or almost anywhere in Carmel. The owner may also trade up for a Carmel house.

CARMEL LOT NEAR TOWN AND BEACH

One of the few vacant lots available. It's priced at $119,500; it even has a little ocean view. What more can you say but "Where?" Call and we'll be delighted to tell you.

3 BRS, 2 BATHS, SOUTH OF OCEAN

And a few blocks from town. This is an extensively remodeled, older Carmel cottage on Dolores just south of 12th. It has a real Carmel feel to it. The large dining room has an interesting stained glass window and lots of skylights. Good value at $179,500.

4 BEDRMS, 2 BATHS, MISSION FIELDS, $115,000

This home is in one of the best Mission Fields locations. It's on a cul-de-sac that is NOT near Highway 1. All rooms are adequate and closet space is ample. There's a dining ell, a single garage and large front and back gardens. Where can you get four bedrooms in Carmel for this low price? Shown any time. Exclusive.

60'x100' LOT NEAR TOWN AND BEACH—OCEAN AND POINT LOBOS VIEW

On Camino Real a little north of Seventh Ave. Almost level. Many beautiful oaks and pines, most of which do not have to be removed for building. A very rare opportunity at $185,000.

2 BRS, 2 BATHS, SOUTH OF OCEAN, $195,000

And an easy walk to town, as well—12th near Lincoln. This is a very well-built home. It has a shake roof, brick and stucco exterior, hardwood floors, birch cabinets, a separate dining room, and a large, protected sunny patio. It is, in fact, an outstanding listing at an unusually (for the neighborhood) low price. Shown by appointment.

Carmel Meadows

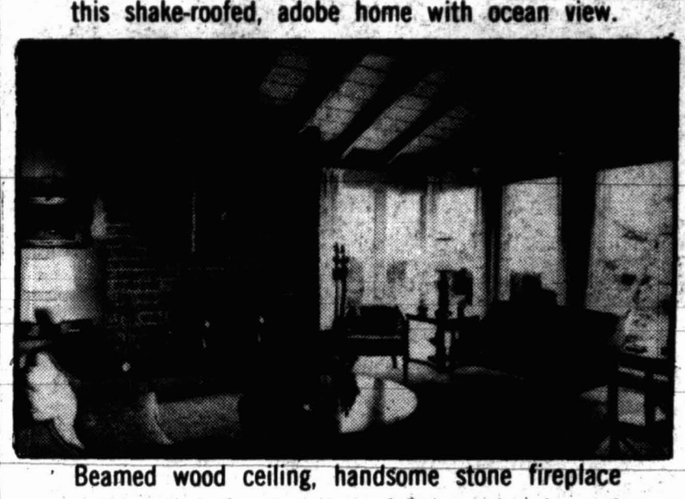
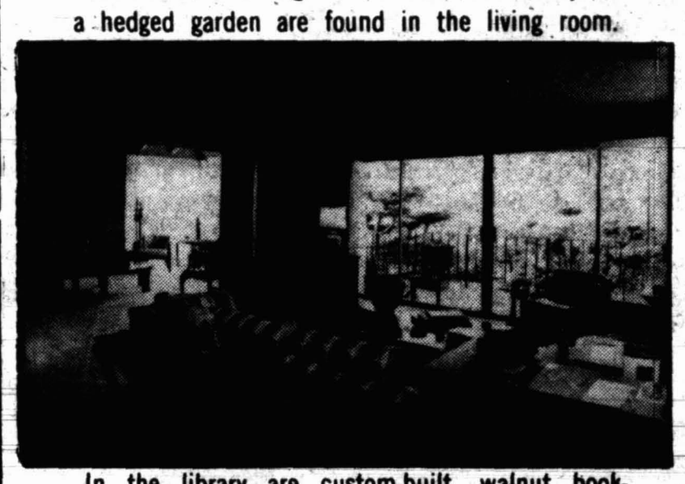
Stepping stones lead through low-care planting to the spacious, walled entrance courtyard of this shake-roofed, adobe home with ocean view.

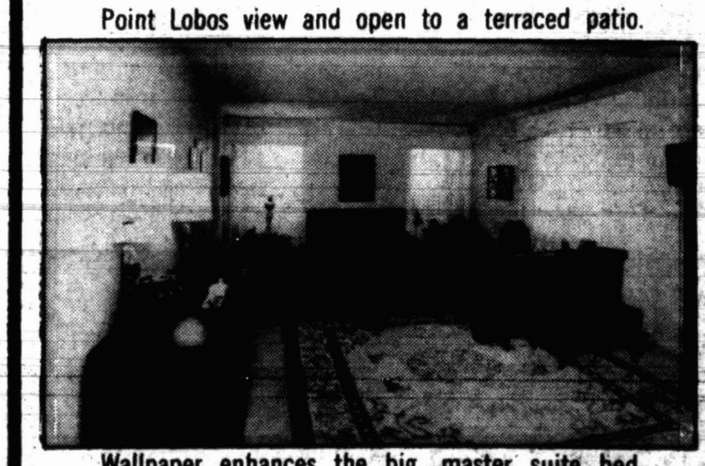


Beamed wood ceiling, handsome stone fireplace and windows framing view of Point Lobos beyond a hedged garden are found in the living room.



In the library are custom-built, walnut bookcases and a window wall opening to a sundeck.

Sliding glass doors in the dining room capture Point Lobos view and open to a terraced patio.



Wallpaper enhances the big, master suite bedroom. Sliding glass doors in a second bedroom open to the entrance patio. Similar access to this outdoor area is a feature of the kitchen with breakfast space, copper-hooded stove and tile and butcher block counters. An entry with ceramic tile floor and wealth of closets, also two more bathrooms, complete the 3,100-sq.-ft. interior. In addition, is a double garage with electric door opener. Price of this desirable home, a block away from a mile-long stretch of beaches and spectacular shoreline — $330,000.
